TO-MORROW'S CONTEST.

The Greeley Democracy's Bargain With Apollo Hall.

Republicans, Vote for Wm. F. Havemeyer for Mayor.

Importance of Personal Effort in the Canvass.

Reform Candidates for Congress and the Assembly.

Remember, To-Morrow is a Legal Holiday.

Another Greeley Intrigue.

We have already called attention to the sudden change in the treatment of Senator O'Brien by the Tribune and the Tammany leaders, since the nomination of Mr. Havemeyer by the Republicans. That there was a base motive at the bottom of this changed demeanor we felt certain, and we are now able to announce the precise object of the change. In our paper of yesterday we gave the fact that an agreement had been made to run Greeley and Brown electoral tickets out of certain Apollo Hall boxes. Facts since developed show that this is done by a preconcerted and secret arrangement among the leaders, by which the Tammany party agree to throw Lawrence completely overboard, in order to get majority enough in the City to carry the State for Greeley and Kernan. The desperation of the Greeleyites is now so extreme that they have concentrated their efforts on this one single object, and they have found some of Mr. O'Brien's supporters ready to co-operate with them. The plan was arranged at a secret conference in West Twenty-second-street, on Friday night of last week, at which were present the following persons: Mr. Augustus Schell, Chairman, and Major A. D. Banks, Secretary National Democratic Committee, representing the Tammany party; Mr. John Cochrane, Mr. Ethan Allen and Mr. Samuel Sinclair, representing the Liberal-Tammany party; Mr. Francis H. Bixby and Mr. Patrick Cuffy, representing the Apollo Hall Democracy. Bob Murray, who generally has a finger in all these arrangements, was not present, owing to the hostility existing between himself and Mr. Ethan Allen, which is of such a nature that the literature of our Courts is likely to be enriched by it. The Tammany candidate for Mayor, Mr. Abraham R. Lawrence, was the victim laid upon the altar at this conclave. It will be observed from the names of Mr. O'Brien's supporters present at this meeting that they cannot be taken as representing more than a fraction of the Apollo Hall Democracy, and there is no evidence in anything that took place on that occasion to show that Mr. O'Brien himself is a party to the bargain. But these facts go to show that the Tammany-Greeley crowd in this City are now devoting all their efforts to conciliate O'Brien, and, to accomplish this result, have already agreed to sacrifice utterly their candidate for Mayor. Confident that this dark and disgraceful game would not be discovered until too late to put a stop to it, the Greeleyites, on Saturday and yesterday, had a spasm of courage, and claimed 40,000 majority for their candidate in the City.

Let the hum of our usual industry cease entirely on Tuesday, a legal holiday, and our hands be employed only with the ballots beneath which Democracy is to be crushed.

Mr. Greeley on Kernan.

"In 1862 he was nominated and supported under pledges that he would give a vigorous support to the war, and to the Administration in prosecuting it—pledges which he did not scruple personally to make and conspicuously to violate. There is not a more enormous Copperhead in the present Congress." "From military fear of his Republican constituency, did not deter him from voting generally with Pendleton, Long, Harris & Co. against most war measures; and when he did not venture to vote on that side he generally dodged. In short, his election was a fraud, grounded on treachery and false promises, and consummated by wholesale bribery, and he ought long since to have resigned."—New-York Tribune, October, 1864.

Mr. Kernan on Mr. Greeley.

"I say to every Democrat within the sound of my voice that Horace Greeley is an honest man."—Speech of Francis Kernan at Tammany Hall, Oct. 31, 1872.

The Mayoralty.

NEW-YORK, Nov. 3, 1872.

The persistent attempt of the supporters of other candidates to create the impression that the nomination of William F. Havemeyer for Mayor, by the Republican Party, was not made in good faith, induces us to say that we know that such reports are untrue.

Attempts will doubtless be made to impose upon voters, and we therefore earnestly appeal to all Republicans to be sure that the name of Mr. Havemeyer is upon the ballots cast by them.

EDWIN D. MORGAN,
JOHN J. TOWNSEND,
CHESTER A. ARTHUR,
GEORGE BLISS, Jr.,
HUGH GARDNER,
GEORGE M. VAN HORT,
THOMAS MURPHY,
ALONZO B. CORNELL.

Working men need not be deterred from voting by the fear of loss of time, as Tuesday is a legal holiday.

One Means of Victory.

The first duty of every Republican to-morrow morning, is to go straightway to the polls of his district and deposit his ballots. That duty performed, he should next seek out his neighbors, who may be lukewarm or in doubt, and make it his especial business that all such persons within his personal acquaintance vote, and vote right. Personal effort always counts largely at elections, but never was so potent as it will be on Tuesday. There are thousands of Democrats who need only to have the Greeley coalition put before them in its true light to induce them to repudiate it by their votes. Many of these men seldom read a newspaper, and rarely attend political meetings, so that they are not fully enlightened as to the issues of the contest. Mr. Greeley's slander, that the Democrats can't read, must not be believed in order to account for the ignorance of many Democrats as to their duty on Tuesday, as they are working men, toiling constantly during the day, and therefore compelled to rest at night, so that they have had no earnest opportunity to investigate the questions pending before the people. Tuesday being a legal holiday, when no business can be done, Republicans can do no better service than to enlighten these men, and thus secure thousands of votes against the coalition. There should be committees appointed by the various district organizations to-night for this purpose, and these selected for the duty should be men who can be relied on for thorough work. There is no reason why New-York should not give a Republican majority, and it will if proper work is done.

Employers should remember that Tuesday is a legal holiday, and should it by closing their establishments, thus giving themselves and their employes a chance to vote and work for the right.

The Tenth Congressional District.

Nowhere is better work being done, and nowhere are all the elements of opposition to the rottenness represented by Fernando Wood more united than in the Tenth Congressional District, where Hon. William A. Darling is the candidate of all the Reformers. An effort was made to divide the vote against Fernando Wood by bringing out Gen. W. S. Hillyer as a candidate, but it has wholly failed, as will be seen by the following letter:

NEW-YORK, Nov. 2, 1872.

Messrs. Struthers and Randell, Committee of the Twelfth Ward Independent Democratic Grant Club:

GENTLEMEN: I have received your notification of my nomination as a Representative in Congress from the Tenth District by the Club you represent, with a profound sense of the honor conferred. In response I beg leave to state that months ago, before any nominations were made by any party in this district, I expressed to many friends who urged me to be a candidate, that under no circumstances could or would I consent. I was at that time assured that I could have the nominations of all parties opposed to Fernando Wood.

Mr. Darling was well aware of this when he accepted the Republican nomination. He is in the field, and I am well known to be in favor of his election. All my influence has been and will be used for him. I am fully committed to his support.

I am, therefore, compelled to decline the nomination tendered by the body you represent. The honor of your nomination is the more fully appreciated by me for the reason that I know that New-York is assured to Grant and Dix by the votes of the independent Democrats of the State. Express to your Club the assurances of my high appreciation of the honor conferred, and my sincere hope that they may, with me, conclude to cast their votes for Hon. Wm. A. Darling. Very respectfully, yours, &c.,

WM. S. HILLYER.

This move as to Gen. Hillyer was a stratagem of the silly Wood, but it has failed utterly to do him any good, as the independent Democracy he endeavored to use will undoubtedly indorse Mr. Darling.

Sixteenth Assembly District.

Ex-Senator William Lambert, the Republican candidate in the Sixteenth Assembly District, having withdrawn from the field, the voters of that District are restricted in their choice to Nicholas Haughton, the Apollo Hall candidate, and Peter Woods, the nominee of Tammany. As between these two there can be no doubt how any honest man or friend of reform ought to vote. Peter Woods, as we have previously stated, represents the worst element of Tammany Democracy, and by what trick he managed to secure the indorsement of the Committee of Seventy is a mystery. We find his name among the list of extortioners in the New-Court-house swindle, as having put in a bill of $10,000 for painting two rooms in that building. He is in every respect unfit, from his past and present associations and character, for the position of Assemblyman, and we trust that every honest voter in the district, whatever may be his politics, will cast his vote for Nicholas Haughton.

Vote early, and then spend the day in proving your friends to vote right. Tuesday is a legal holiday, and you lose nothing by attending to public affairs.

Seventeenth Assembly District.

Among the unexceptionable candidates running for the Assembly in this City is Wm. T. Graff, the Republican nominee in the Seventeenth District. Mr. Graff was for twenty years a public school teacher in this City, during six years of which he served as principal. For the last fifteen years he has been a real estate lawyer, and has borne the character of an honest, public-spirited, trustworthy man. Any Republican, or any man of any party, in his district, who knows him, will indorse his integrity to the fullest extent. Few men have a larger acquaintance, and yet he publishes a card challenging the severest scrutiny of his character and "requesting that every voter in his district will inquire, before voting, in relation to his character, standing and ability to represent the Seventeenth Assembly District in the next Legislature."

The First Congressional District.

The Republicans of the First Congressional District, composed of the Counties of Suffolk, Queens and Richmond, have an opportunity which is seldom afforded them in the chance now presented them to elect their candidate for Representative. Hon. Henry J. Scudder, who is in every way deserving of their suffrages. He is opposed by a member of the Queens County Ring, who is utterly unworthy of the position he seeks. If the Republicans of the district work unitedly and heartily for Mr. Scudder from now until the closing of the polls, he can be elected.

One day in the year to get much to give to your country, yet it is all that is asked; give to-morrow, which is a legal holiday.

Two Big Lies.

If there is sublime confidence anywhere in the certainty of a Liberal triumph, it is in the West.—Tribune, Nov. 2.

To Democrats.—We should have carried Ohio, if you had voted.—Tribune, same date.

A "Liberal" Confession.

Every one who cares to know the latest from the sick-bed of the coalition will read the "Confession" from the late Secretary of the Liberal Republican Committee, published elsewhere. It shows that the fatal weakness of the Greeley movement was, as everybody but the "leaders" saw at its inception, the utter refusal of Democrats to vote for Greeley.

Senator Bayard.

Senator Bayard, of Delaware, evinced his intense devotion to Greeley and reconciliation, in a speech at Milford on Saturday, by a brutal attack upon the negroes as a political class, and a wild appeal to his hearers not to let the Diamond State pass under negro rule. He congratulated himself that he was speaking only to white men, and got off a vast deal of drivel which raised something more than a suspicion of the genuineness of Democratic devotion to the Cincinnati platform. The mask is already falling from the fraud born of an insatiate hunger for spoils.

Your country asks for only Tuesday, a legal holiday; give that, and do as you will with all the rest of the week.

John Hardy on a Farmer.

The Associated Press report of the proceedings of the Assembly of this State for April 18, last, shows that a bill having been put before the House, framed as a response to the call of President Lincoln for troops, Mr. John Hardy, now a candidate for Representative in Congress for the Ninth Congressional District, in a virulent Copperhead speech, opposed the passage of the bill. On his final passage there were but five votes besides Mr. Hardy's in opposition; and the vote announced was yeas 128, nays 6. Most of the Democrats in the Assembly at the time placed themselves on record, by speech and vote, as in favor of the bill as a patriotic measure. It will be remembered that this vote of Mr. John Hardy was given when the echoes of the guns fired on Fort Sumter had scarcely died away. The voters of the Ninth Congressional District will need no advice whether they should sustain a man with such a record.

New-Hampshire All Right.

The Republican State Committee of New-Hampshire have nearly completed the actual canvass of the votes of their State. The remarkable accuracy of those canvasses in the past is well known, they having never, with but one exception, exceeded the real vote during the past nineteen years. The Committee say that the returns from 198 towns received prior to Oct. 31 give the following results:

For Grant	37,473
For Greeley	34,138
For O'Conor	819
Doubtful	1,248
Grant over Greeley	3,335
Grant over Greeley, O'Conor and all the doubtful	2,268

The canvass shows much better than last March, when the Republicans had 1,100 clear majority in the State, and more than 2,000 over the Democratic ticket.

No Republican should fail so give Tuesday wholly to hiscomfort, as it is a legal holiday.

WAR DEMOCRATS FOR GRANT.

Stirring Letter from Gen. James C. Strong, of Buffalo—He Declares for Grant and Good Government, in Opposition to Greeley.

The Buffalo Commercial Advertiser publishes a letter from Gen. James C. Strong, of that city, addressed to his comrades of the war, giving his reasons why he, always a Democrat of the strictest sort, now supports President Grant for re-election. He writes:

"The platforms upon which the candidates stand are essentially alike, involving no marked difference of principle, and therefore the decision we are called upon to make narrows down to a consideration of the men, as ardently as I can, I am relieved of that always embarrassing question, whether we shall leave our own party and vote with the other. There is today no Democratic Party, with its platform and its candidates. Both the candidates are professedly, and, in fact, Republican. True, a portion of the Democrats here have assumed to adopt one of them, (and he the most bitter and unreasonable enemy they ever had,) and demand that we shall not only change our party affiliation, but accept the candidate of their adoption. The right of the Convention to select our candidates for the Democratic Party has always been conceded; but the instant they abandoned the party and failed to select Democratic candidates, that instant the right returned to the individual members of the party. And next Tuesday will, in my opinion, show that nine-tenths of our Democratic brethren will exercise that right in the choice of Gen. Grant. Some of us who have heretofore been numbered among the War Democracy have never been in favor of any compromise with rebels in arms, or at heart. We all individually periled too much in that great struggle for life to throw even a doubtful ballot against the Government in the ranks of those who would forgive our former enemies, extending the hand of welcome and friendship to all those who would, with a true heart, return to their allegiance. * * * Mr. Greeley is a man of powerful mind; therein consists the danger. Were he a weak-minded man there would be no danger, for he would then have no influence. He is like a steam-engine without a balance wheel, a steam-boat without a rudder; the more powerful the more dangerous and destructive. In a safe country, in whose hands to trust the supreme command? In regard to B. Gratz Brown, of Missouri, I shall say nothing; for in my judgment as to a choice between him and Hon. Henry Wilson, of Massachusetts, there is no comparison. Mr. Wilson so far exceeds him in everything that befits a candidate for and high office.

On the other hand, let us consider for a moment the character of Gen. Grant. What was his course during the trying hours of rebellion? Was he sometimes with us, and sometimes against us? Was he ever, even for a moment, found advocating concessions, or doing any act whatever tending to that result? Was he ever found advocating the raising of millions of money, by taxation of the North, for the purpose of paying Southern rebels for their slaves? Was he ever found advocating any compromise with rebels in arms or heart? Not he has ever been on our side; has fought with us upon the battle-field, and has, may, ever been ready and willing to forgive our foes, and extend to them the hand of friendship, when with an honest heart they would return to their allegiance to the Government of the United States. He possesses a strong, well-balanced mind, noted for firm determination, good judgment, sound discretion and steadiness of purpose. He has ever been our friend, and will continue to be.

The only argument the opponents of Gen. Grant use against his re-election is, that he has made mistakes, and committed errors, during his Presidential term. For the sake of the argument, I admit it—what then? If a man with the mental characteristics of Gen. Grant has made mistakes, and committed errors, what, I pray, would have been the errors of a man possessing the unsteady, wavering, and fickle mind of Horace Greeley, had he occupied the Presidential chair during the same four years? It is no manifestness to say, the errors would greatly have exceeded Gen. Grant's.

Hon. Henry Wilson, of Massachusetts, is splendidly fitted for the position of Vice-President of the United States—a man of fine mental qualifications, and great experience in the legislative branch of the Government—eminently qualified to take the helm of state should the hand, should we be called upon to mourn the loss of our President by death, as in some former instances. How different with B. Gratz Brown, of Missouri!

These reasons, my comrades, seem to me sufficient to decide the question as to which of the candidates will be more likely to administer the Government judiciously, and least likely to throw away the great advantages that have accrued, as the results of the war. I present them for your consideration, hoping you may be convinced, as I am, that in this political contest, as in others, duty calls upon us to use our ballots, as we used our bullets, in support of our tried and honored commander, Gen. Grant."

Another Misplaced Switch—A Catastrophe Happily Averted.

From the Boston Advertiser, Oct. 31.

An accident very similar in its cause to the late disaster at Seabrook took place on the Boston and Lowell road yesterday afternoon, which might have resulted as fatally but for the promptness of one of the employes of the road. At 12½ P. M. a train loaded with bricks was switched off the inward across the outward track on to the siding at East Cambridge, which connects the Lowell with the Grand Junction road. The man tending the switch, who was a brakeman on the brick train, after his train had passed, set the signal-targets "all right" for through-trains to pass on the outward track, but neglected to shift the switch. In consequence of this most culpable piece of stupidity, the outward freight-train from Boston, a few moments later, on reaching the place ran over on the inward track, and then the engine, tender, and two rorward cars left the track. Fortunately no one was injured, though it is had been a fast passenger train instead of a slow-going freight, it would have probably pitched down the steep embankment and caused more or less loss of life. At this moment Mr. Smith, the station master at Milk Row, Somerville, which is about an eighth of a mile farther out, noticed something wrong on looking down the track toward the scene. As he knew the express train from Lowell was due in five minutes, he lost no time in putting out every flag, and succeeded in pulling up the train, which generally passes this point at the rate of twenty miles an hour. By this prompt action he probably saved many lives, for there was not room to pull up the train going at its usual speed had it passed this point.

The New Governor of South Carolina and the State Bonds.

From the Columbia, (S. C.,) Phœnix, Oct. 26.

We are authorized to state that Gen. F. J. Moses, Jr., (Governor elect,) opposes the assessment and collection of the tax to pay the interest on what is known as the doubtful bonds—amounting to about $5,000,000—but is earnestly in favor of the payment of the interest on the bonds legitimatized by the Tax-payer's Convention—amounting to about $10,000,000. This is reform in the right direction.

"THE BOTTOM OUT."

Important Revelations of the Greeley Management.

A List of Contributors to the Liberal Exchequer.

Where the Money Came From—A Big Row Among the Liberal Managers—Rich and Racy Developments.

Every Republican victory won in this campaign has been greeted by the organs and leaders of the disreputable coalition with cries of "Fraud!" "Corruption!" "Money did it!" &c., &c. Just as if the Tammany Party was the only one which never used money in elections, and was always concerned lest it should not make an immaculate record. Everybody has known that the coalition has used a great deal of money in this campaign, and everybody has wondered where it could possibly come from. We are at last able to give some highly-important and interesting, not to say amusing, information on this subject. Daylight has at last been let into the dark secrets of the Liberal exchequer, and we are inclined to the belief that the facts herewith presented will be read with infinite zest and amusement.

Yesterday was a gloomy, rainy, quiet Sunday. Owing to the cessation of travel and the unpleasant weather, our force of vigilant representatives had less than usual to do. But, finding a screw loose in the Liberal management they applied themselves industriously, and the result was a renewed assurance that honest industry always prospers. And by way of prelude, it may be stated that, literally, the "bottom is out" at the Liberal and Democratic Headquarters; the contest is all but abandoned; the exchequer is not only exhausted but the committees are deeply in debt; confidence between the leaders has long been gone, and personal feuds have taken its place. Fenton and Cochrane are by the ears with Allen and Murray—and Allen, Murray, and detective Wood are in a big quarrel with each other, the end of which, as will be seen, is likely to reveal a great deal of "richness" yet secreted in the archives of the Liberal Headquarters. But, to the list of "financial losses" sustained by those who have loved Greeley "not wisely, but too well."

THE FIRST CONTRIBUTION.

The first man to testify his appreciation of Mr. Greeley in a substantial manner was Gen. Alfred Pleasonton. Almost upon the heels of the Cincinnati Convention, and at the very inception of the "tidal wave," he planked down his check for $2,500, and would have been glad to have made it more, but that he came out of office a poor man. So that, in addition to having sacrificed his veracity at the request of Schurz, he stands recorded as having sacrificed his money at the request of Ethan Allen and Jim Scovel.

HOW MR. A. T. STEWART BACKED AND FILLED.

Everybody will remember with what a flourish it was announced early in the campaign by the Liberal organs themselves that the great millionaire merchant, in the rough disgust of Grant and his Administration, had demonstrated his desire for a change to the extent of $50,000; and how it was denied and questioned and confused until nobody could tell anything about it. But there hangs a tale by the transaction well worth recording. The astute Mr. Fenton managed the matter, and no one excels him in the secrecy with which he executes such plans. This is the way in which the "accident" happened, and how it was remedied. Mr. Stewart was approached at an early day for a contribution to the Greeley cause. With his accustomed sagacity, he replied that owing to his large business, and the contact he necessarily had with the Government officials, it would not do for him to subscribe as desired. But it was finally arranged that his copartners in the several Western States should contribute, on their own account, $50,000 in the aggregate, and the settlement of the account would be a business matter between him and them. The prime condition of the whole arrangement was that the name of Mr. A. T. Stewart should not be known in the matter at all. But this news created much joy at the Greeley head-quarters that Mr. Ethan Allen forthwith killed the golden goose by rushing the fact into the newspapers. Thereupon Mr. Stewart, in high dudgeon, refused to carry out the arrangement. But the softly-persuasive powers of the suave Mr. Fenton were again brought into requisition, and shortly before the North Carolina election, viz., about the 23d of July last, at the St. Nicholas Hotel, he was induced to contribute $16,000, which was drawn in $500 bills and sent to that State. But, it should be added, that Mr. Stewart has endeavored very recently to atone for his misplaced confidence by subscribing at least one-fifth as much to the Republican expenses, so that he can be said to have treated both sides alike, except only as to amounts.

MONEY FOR NORTH CAROLINA.

About this time, what with Stewart's ten thousand and some other contributions, the Liberal Committee felt very "flush," and determined to make a "spurt" and carry North Carolina. Col. Tisdale, Mr. Fenton's private secretary and confidential manager, was thereupon started for that State with eighteen thousand dollars upon one train, and Wood and Blumenburg were sent off on another. What they did, or sought to do, is well known. This money was paid over by Tisdale to these worthies, and thereby hangs another tale, which will keep well enough until after election. Mr. A. T. Stewart will be glad to learn that he has furnished capital to start some of these "Liberal" gentlemen in an honorable business.

GOV. SPRAGUE AND HIS BROTHER.

The "Liberal" managers had but few rich pickers, but they worked them well. They sought to take advantage, at an early day, of the supposed "sympathies" of Gov. Sprague, and the well-known Democratic tendencies of his brother Amasa. But Gov. Sprague, like some others, did not wish to appear on paper. He was perfectly willing to subscribe, but he didn't want the fact known at Washington. So he put down $50,000 in the names of two friends, viz., Mr. Jno. F. Hamlin, who got the check from the Governor, and devoted $10,000 of the sum to the New-England States—and Mr. M. R. Pierce, who took the remaining $40,000 for Pennsylvania. In the meantime Gov. Sprague has secured his Republican friends thus he has made no subscription. In addition to this, his brother, Mr. Amasa Sprague, forwarded the sum of $25,000 in one check, with instructions to apply it as follows: To Maine, $5,000; to Connecticut, $5,000; to Allen, for the Liberal National Committee, $10,000; to Major Banks, for the Democratic National Committee, $15,000; adding, as the desperation of a depleted pocket, "not a cent more."

MONEY FOR PENNSYLVANIA.

The Pennsylvania campaign was a sore experience for the Liberals in more respects than one. They alleged great poverty, though they brought a large amount of money to bear nevertheless. We have not space today to tell all the details of their expenditure, but there is one branch of it that is rather too rich to omit. That brilliant manager, Mr. Ethan Allen thought it necessary to save the same sagacious and unscrupulous aid which he had in North Carolina. So he arranged with Bob Murray that he (Murray) should go to Philadelphia and take charge of the manipulations. He then telegraphed to Wood and Blumenburg to come here, and they were detailed to assist Murray. Allen provided them $10,000 of Gov. Sprague's money, and said to Wood, "If you want a thousand or so more, draw on me." They all repaired to Philadelphia in the first days of October and made their head-quarters at the Elmore House, in Arch-street. On the eve of October, three days before election, Gov. Sprague's friend, Mr. Pierce, arrived in Philadelphia and paid Murray $6,000. This was $5,000 less than promised, and Murray apprised Allen of that fact. Allen replied that Murray must get $5,000 more from Pierce, as that was the sum agreed upon. Wood went ahead in his operations, and desiring $1,000 more, Murray advanced it on the strength of Allen's authorization to draw. In the mean time the whole party were closely watched, through the management of William E. Mann and Gen. Henry E. Bingham, so that all their operations were completely foiled; and the result of this Pennsylvania business was disastrous all round, for, in addition to defeat, it has bred

A NEW BREACH BETWEEN EX-MARSHAL MURRAY AND ETHAN ALLEN,

which promises to get into the Courts. Allen refuses to pay the $1,000 which Murray had advanced to Wood in Philadelphia, and Murray "purposes" to "put him through," as will be seen by the following letter to Detective Wood, which is given with all the embellishments of Ex-Marshal Murray's perfect orthography and etymology:

GREELEY AND BROWN,
HEAD QRS. NAT. DEM COMTEE,
SPRINGER HOUSE, UNION SQUARE,
NEW-YORK, Oct. 22, 1872.

Wm. F. Wood, Esq.:

DR. SIR: I have just had an interview with Allen and he positively refuses to pay that one thousand dollars. he denies ever having received any telegram from Pierce, and says he will not pay it anyway. When you come to New-York I want you to call on him and demand the money and if he refuses to pay commence a suite against him immediately for the amount. I will see you before you leave. If he has always told you to a house of the first water, I wish you would come here with as little delay as possible, for I dont think it advisable to leave any Time with this fellow. We have a good case against him and he cannot shake it in any way in the world. If we put it to him, which I purpose a doing as soon as he refuses to pay you the amount of his otherwise you to draw for. Yours, &c.,

(Signed,) ROBERT MURRAY.

SPRAGUE'S MISSING FIVE THOUSAND.

In the meantime, there is a lively scramble for that missing $5,000 which Mr. Pierce failed to pay over. Gov. Sprague has been absent in Texas, but he passed through this City Friday on his return to Providence, and Ethan Allen at once dispatched a letter to him wanting to know about it, and requesting him to send the $5,000 to him at once. Allen expects an answer today. Murray also has an eye on this $5,000, claiming that he is entitled to it on account of the Philadelphia expenses.

MONEY FROM THE TRIBUNE.

About the 20th or 22d of September, last Mr. Samuel Sinclair gladdened the heart of Mr. Ethan Allen by informing him that he had collected twelve thousand dollars, of which sum, he confidentially said, Mr. Greeley himself had contributed six thousand dollars. But, owing to circumstances which will be subsequently explained, Mr. Sinclair did not pay the money to Mr. Allen, but handed it to Mr. Augustus Schell, who, not wanting a quarrel on his hands, quietly turned it over to Allen. Thus it will be seen that Mr. Greeley put up the money "on the mettle." Whether he "sold another nigger," as he was wont to call his shares of Tribune stock, we cannot positively say, but we learn that about the same time Mr. Whitelaw Reid bought one, and that may be the explanation of Mr. Greeley's 6,000 subscription.

MR. SCHELL'S CONTRIBUTIONS.

The highly-respectable Chairman of the Democratic National Committee has been obliged, in this campaign, to perform the arduous duty of keeping two sets of accounts—one for his own Committee and one for the Liberals. He has paid over to the latter at different times, including the Tribune $12,000, the sum of $65,000. And in addition, he has contributed largely to Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. Fifteen thousand dollars was sent to Illinois only last Saturday, $10,000 to Ohio and $10,000 to Indiana for the October elections, the latter amount being paid to Mr. Noern, a member of the Democratic State Central Committee. Mr. Stern, a member of the Liberal State Committee, has been here, and $15,000 is said to have been forwarded through him for the election next Tuesday.

VARIOUS OTHER CONTRIBUTIONS.

Other "patriots" have stood in the breach and sacrificed their money. The list of circumstances, very interesting indeed, but rather too numerous to mention in this issue. Hon. John Cochrane is down on his own account for $8,000. Mr. Marshall O Roberts planked down to Ethan Allen, as late as Oct. 26, $10,000. Among the bankers, Mr. John E. Williams, of the Metropolitan, is down for $10,000 for himself and his brother for $5,000 more. Bob Murray is credited with $2,000 on his own account, in three different installments—$1,000 before North Carolina, $1,000 just after, and $2,500 just prior to the October elections. Mr. Charles P. McGarrahan Shaw, so late as last week, put himself in the breach for $2,500, and Ethan Allen himself spiked his last gun with $2,500 on his own account. This preachts nearly the total of the funds which have flown into the National Liberal Republican exchequer during the campaign. The account stands thus, so far:

Gen. A. Pleasonton	$2,500
A. T. Stewart	10,000
Sam'l Sinclair, for Greeley and the Tribune	12,000
Sam'l Sinclair, for Sam'l Schell, (late Tribune)	65,000
Amasa Sprague	25,000
Gov. Sprague, ($5,000 missing)	15,000
Marshall O. Roberts	10,000
John E. Williams, for himself and brother	15,000
John Cochrane	8,000
Robert Murray	6,000
Ethan Allen	2,500
C. P. Shaw	2,500
Gov. Swann, of Maryland, through Fenton	5,000
Stevenson Archer, of Maryland, through Fenton	500
Ex-Collector Webster, of Maryland, through Fenton	2,000
Total	$175,500
Forwarded by Schell to Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois	40,000
Total	$215,500

MR. FENTON KEEPS A SEPARATE ACCOUNT.

Owing to the absence of Mr. Fenton from the City, our reporters were unable to obtain a full list of all his collections. The shrewd Senator has exhibited a deplorable lack of confidence in the political sagacity and management of Ethan Allen from the very start, and has refused to trust him with the collections to that commander. This explains why the Tribune contribution was at least paid to Schell, instead of Allen. Mr. Fenton has also disbursed on his own account, and his private Secretary, Mr. Tisdel, is now in Ohio, attending to matters, with, it is said, funds from Mr. Fenton's hands.

NO MONEY FOR MICHIGAN.

We may also take occasion to inform the nice and wise Gov. Blair, of Michigan, who seems to think he ought to receive money for his services, that the two members of the Liberal State Committee whom he recommended to Mr. Schell as discreet and worthy of confidence in money matters, were informed by that gentleman that he wasn't dealing with Liberal Republican State committees, and thereupon recommended them to apply to Ethan Allen, whose exchequer is now "dead flat."

THE AGGREGATE.

If to this aggregate of $215,500 be added Mr. Fenton's collections, and sundry contributions of members of Congress and others, the total will not fall short of $300,000. This is the record of the party which holds up its hands in horror at the use of money in elections.

Thanksgiving in Connecticut.

Gov. Marshall Jewell, of Connecticut, has issued the following proclamation:

In grateful acknowledgment of the mercies of the year I do hereby appoint Thursday, the 28th day of November next, as a day of public Thanksgiving; and I would earnestly recommend the people of this commonwealth that they assemble on that day in their usual places of worship, and join their voices in praise to Almighty God, that He has blessed the earth with abundant harvests; that He has averted pestilence and famine from our land; that He has spared our State and nation from foreign war and domestic dissension, and has blessed us with prosperity and success beyond our deserts.

Let us gratefully partake of His bounty, remembering the poor and needy, and contributing of our abundance to their necessities.

Given under my hand and the seal of the State, at Hartford, this twenty-eighth day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two, and of the independence of the United States the ninety-seventh.

MARSHALL JEWELL.

By his Excellency's command:
HIRAM APPELMAN, Secretary of State.

The Late Rev. Vincent Colyer.

DARIEN, Conn., Nov. 3.—Mrs. Vincent Colyer, whose sudden decease was published on Saturday, was a grand niece of John Hancock, the patriot, and not of Gen. Hancock, as stated. The large concourse of sympathizing neighbors who have visited her remains on Contentment Island testify how deeply she was beloved. Her funeral takes place on Monday at St. George's Church, (Dr. Tyng's,) of which she was a member.

Attempted Fraud on a Maryland Bank—Escape of the Swindler.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Nov. 3.—A man, giving his name as Henry Howland, deposited in the Second National Bank, in this city, yesterday, a check for $9,000 on the Fulton National Bank of New-York, purporting to be signed by C. H. Mallory & Co. An hour afterward he drew his check for $8,000, and was requested to call again. Telegraphic information from New-York announced the check a fraud. Howland did not call again, and has not been arrested.

Another Election in Baltimore to Fill a Vacancy in the Common Council—Prospect for a Republican Gain.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 3.—To-morrow both Republicans and Democrats nominate candidates for this vacancy in the City Council, caused by the death of E. M. Nemuth, elected on the 24th ult., when the Republicans and temperance tickets received together 811 votes, against 683 for Nemuth. As the two will be consolidated on Saturday next, the Republicans are confident of electing Dr. Wright, who will be put in nomination again. That will be another gain for the Republicans—a state of things becoming common in Maryland.

Fight with Indians in Guatemala—A Diplomatic Question in Embryo.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Oct. 26.—The representative of Spain at Honduras has been alarming his Government with respect to the recent arrival of laborers from Jamaica at Belize. It appears that a mêlee occurred among some Spaniards. It was thereupon reported to the Spanish Government that Sir Peter Grant had been shipping negroes to Honduras, with arms and ammunition. Even the number of mitrailleuse is stated. The circumstance, having been represented to the British Government has been referred to the Governor of Jamaica for explanation. The affair is now undergoing police investigation.

GUATEMALA.

Two hundred Indians attacked Jalapa on the 17th ult.; the battle lasted an hour and resulted in the defeat of the Indians, who fled and were pursued by 800 troops. All the Eastern departments are quiet.

SCENES IN HUNGARY.

A Transylvanian Landlord.

My reception on one of my first visits in Transylvania was characteristic of the hospitality of the country. I had some introductions to one of the magnates, a Baron, who has great reputation as a landlord and cultivator. The diligence put me down at the house of his son, a young nobleman also of large estates. He came forth immediately—a very refined, intelligent-looking young gentleman—and welcomed me cordially, taking me with him into his house, a long white building of one story, within a little court or garden.

The floors were of parquetry, with occasional handsome rugs and the furniture rich. The walls of his own "snuggery" were ornamented with arms and guns. Everything was very neat and even elegant. Several liveried men servants were about the house. The young Baron immediately offered to drive me over to his father's. I accepted gladly, and the wagon being brought, we drove through a perfectly flat plain, covered with wheat and Indian corn, toward a clump of green in the distance. The scenery is singularly monotonous. On the horizon, bare hills, with old beach-lines on them, treeless and cold; in the centre a vast plain, with cattle and occasional grain-fields and villages; nowhere forests, or even mountains in sight. The hills on the south side, my friend says, have the singular property of being always poor in soil, while the north slope is rich; the reason probably being that the ancient "drift" carried away the vegetable deposits on that slope and left them in the plain, which has a good soil. We passed in our drive some gypsy huts, where the children even, as old as twelve, played, naked, in the dirt, looking like little naked negroes. The parents were often as black as genuine Africans. In the stream which we ferried, were lying the black Asiatic buffaloes, with only their noses out of water, avoiding the heat and flies, and looking like the pictures we see in African travels of hippotami. Our route also carried us through a village of low, white earthen cottages, with heavy thatches, clustered about the castle of the Baron. The castle, however, was a nondescript, large white building of two stories, probably built of stone and stuccoed. Not far from it was a larger and more ambitious hall, also white, the old residence of the family.

The Baroness, a superb-looking lady of middle life, welcomed us with that indescribably delightful manner of the Hungarian ladies of refinement. I think this manner characterizes many peoples who live a little apart from the world and yet have had the best training of the world. I was struck with a similar manner in Sweden.

No nation can surpass, for instance, the English middle and upper classes in true hospitality; but the manner of the higher ladies has always something cold or distant or conscious in it, as of one conferring favors and knowing she is gracious.

The manner of a Hungarian lady of rank is singularly sweet and considerate; it is more, even, than kind; it is benignant, as of one accustomed to take care of dependents, and guests, and many persons, and habitually considering their comfort and welfare. Her familiarity, too, with various languages gives her a special charm and power.

I am confident the best gifts of manner and refinement need never be lost by the middle classes. The secret of all courtesy is consideration, and people of very moderate means and position can show as much of that as the richest. The habit, too, of society, power of conversation, and sympathy in men's topics or the great interests of the world, may belong to the women of the middle class as much as of any other. It is true, there will always be a certain hot-house delicacy, a sheltered and protected grace to a woman brought up in great luxury, which those placed in contact with the real struggles of life will not show. But this is, after all, an artificial and doubtful virtue, and is no mark of genuine refinement or culture. High breeding is given by the training of home in habits of consideration, courtesy and refinement, and it may be a charm of many classes besides the wealthy or the noble born.

The Baroness welcomed us at once to the "gouter," or cold coffee with something like whipped syllabub in it, (which proved to be buffalo's cream,) and cakes. We then walked over to the other hall, and were shown through the rooms which are kept in state. The floors were handsomely parquetted—an elegance which our wealthy country houses might imitate with advantage—and the walls were hung with portraits of the ancestors. The Hungarian costume gives a fine effect to portraits, as each nobleman is represented in his Court dress, which is very graceful and brilliant, but the painting is generally very poor.

Behind this hall or castle was a grand park, which must be an immense pleasure for this flat, treeless region.

The trees had all been planted by the family, and the grounds laid out by the present and former generations. The Hungarian gentlemen have, however, very little conception generally, of landscape gardening.

The other gentlemen of the family welcomed me here most cordially, and we strolled about in the park, enjoying the walks and the shade. I was struck here, as I am often in Hungary, with the vigor of the high-class ladies. They walked up the hills and through the long avenues with quite as much elasticity and strength as any of the men.

As twilight drew on, we sat long on the balcony chatting and watching the lights and shadows through the park. The owner of this portion of the estate, Count B., was particularly delighted with an American maple he had imported and set out, its form was so symmetrical. He had many other American trees and shrubs—two or three young sequoia, I think—but none doing remarkably well. His own trees were much the same with our northern vegetation—the beech, ash, poplar, oak and pine. I missed two trees, however, which I thought would be very useful here—the hickory and the sugar-maple. The wood of the former has to be imported even from the United States, and it is a tree that would flourish well on the Transylvanian hills. The sugar-maple would grow easily in many parts of Hungary, and would be a most valuable source of supply for sugar, to the people, as well as giving a beautiful shade for their avenues and roads—a thing much needed throughout the country. These gentlemen knew them both by their botanical names, as they are constantly on the search for new shrubbery. There seems some difficulty in acclimatizing American varieties here, though why I know not, as the climate is very like that of our northern districts. It is remarkable that the same "cold turn," in the Spring, which did such damage this year among our evergreens, shows no dreary trees here among cedars and some foreign evergreen shrubbery, while the "hot spell" of New-York, in July, was felt over the whole North Atlantic, Northern European and even here.

On returning to the other Hall we met the Baron, my host, who had been [illegible] back ride, and whom I had not seen a most clear-headed, energetic, able man, a true Wirth, or manager of an estate, and, I suppose, the practitioner landholder in Transylvania. His reception was as kind and cordial as that of the others had been. As we walked along through the twilight, there came a sudden tramp and roar through the park, just beyond the pretty stream which bounded our lawn.

"Herr Je!" ejaculated one of the gentlemen; "it is the stud!"

"Bassom-a-Jesu Christo!" (a Slavonic oath, untranslatable and horrible,) shrieked the gardener; "they will be over my flowers!"

And each and every one started off, with shout, and cry, and oath, to turn the animals the other way.

It was a stampede of the gentleman's horses, which were in pasture, and had taken some panic, and were coming down over his grounds. Presently they appeared, emerging from the forest, and were turned in another direction—a wild herd of horses, followed by the slower mares and foals.

All the gentry of Transylvania keep great numbers of horses, both thoroughbred and others, and make quite a business of selling them to the gentlemen of other countries.

SUPPER TALK.

We sat down at 9 to the customary supper, beginning here with soup, and going on through fricasseed chickens and tomatoes, various preparations of meat, exceedingly delicate and savory, and ending with fruit.

One sees no joints on Hungarian tables. Even with roast beef, it is cut off and passed in slices; and in a hotel, if you want it rare, you ask for "English roslif." None of the dishes are put on the table except fruit; all the others are handed by the waiters. The Hungarians understand the judicious use of tomatoes and red pepper in their cookery, and succeed in giving remarkable flavors.

As is not uncommon on Transylvanian tables, this gentleman, the owner of thirteen vineyards, did not have a passable wine on his table. The fact is, the upper classes are exceedingly temperate. They drink light wines, of not more than half the strength of our cider, and these they mix with the Borsseg mineral water, or Sauerwasser, a delicious mineral water, so that they neither know nor care much about the quality of their wines, and seldom suffer from the strength of them.

Our talk was of the political and legal condition of Transylvania.

"Herr B., you can judge of the condition of our gentlemen from my own. When the Revolution came, I took part with the nation, and suffered, with the other landholders, the loss of all my urbarial rights, (feudal claims of labor.) My tenants were scattered about in various counties. One would get his slip of land, and then would come mine, and then his neighbors. My land was all mixed in with theirs and theirs with mine, and with no fences or hedges as you have in America and England. Then the peasants have here, you know, the 'three-field system;' that is, they put one field in rape, another in wheat, and leave another fallow, and so on, regularly. Well, I had to follow the same, for the convenience of working such small bits, so I could do nothing for the improvement of agriculture.

"You may judge of my losses when I tell you that the Government indemnity to me (for feudal rights) was six hundred thousand gulden, (three hundred thousand dollars,) and that probably was not a tenth of the real loss.

"It took me a long time to get even that, and I had to accept Government bonds not worth seventy-five per cent. of their value. I was nearly ruined. Then came the concession. You don't know what that is! May you never!"

It was a kind of redistributing of lands. Thus, for example, if I had three lots, and a peasant one in the midst of them, he was obliged, to exchange that for some other, nearer his own, or to sell it to me for a price which the Commission determined. So, if I had one in the midst of the peasants, they could compel me to exchange in the same way or to sell. It was arbitrary, and often did some injustice, but it had to be done.

But, Herr B., even with all that, my estates are scattered among ninety-three different villages!

And there is no end to perplexing questions. We have given up our feudal rights and our titles, but in some cases the property (such as vineyards) seemed to belong to me personally, and not to the tenants. We are still at law as to these pieces.

The whole property of Siebenbürgen is in a Verwirr. (muddle.)

Fortunately I have escaped by managing my forests carefully. The railroads enable me to get the wood to market, and they have brought my property up in value."

Turf Notes.

Since Hunting succeeded in wiping out the record of Dutchman's three-mile time, the trotting community has been exercised by an interesting controversy. When Dutchman made his famous record of 7:32 he was matched against time. Now, whether he was matched against 7:30 or 7:40 is the controversial point which cannot be clearly decided. A few weeks previous to that historic trial, thirty-three years ago, Dutchman had beaten Awful in 7:40 in harness, and it does not seem possible that any man in his right mind would have wagered $1,000 that Dutchman could not beat 7:40 under saddle, which he had already beaten 16 eight seconds in harness; and yet the old Spirit of the Times of 1839, after the race with Awful, states in a postscript, evidently written in haste, that Dutchman is matched against 7:40, &c. This is made the betting point, and while the record certainly justifies a man betting on 7:40, common sense would lead us to believe that Dutchman trotted against 7:30.

Mr. John F. Chamberlain won his maiden race with Brooklyn, at Baltimore, and all his friends are congratulating him. His fine colt True Blue ran third for the Dixie Stake, the greatest of the year, which was in itself a victory, arguing well for the future.

Mr. Belmont's racing stock is increasing so rapidly that he finds it necessary to begin an annual sale. He intends hereafter to train the colts only and sell the filly foals. The weanling fillies now at Mr. Belmont's stud farm at Babylon, Long Island, are six in number, and will be sold under the hammer next Spring. They are as follows:

Chestnut filly, by Kentucky, out of imp. Camilla, by King Tom; chestnut filly, by Kentucky, out of imp. Fluke, by Kentucky, out of Attraction, by imp. Bazaroni; bay filly, by Lexington, out of imp. Flirtigent, out of Maroon, by imp. Glencoe; brown filly, by imp. Leamington, out of Ultima, by Lexington. These are all of the best blood in the country, and no doubt the competition for them next Spring will be great.

Our favorite little Bires, Lyttleton, is now on his way to Mobile to challenge a thoroughbred for the great four-mile-and-repeat race for the $20,000 purse, which will be run at the Spring meeting of the Louisiana Jockey Club. Since Mr. Welch became the owner of Lyttleton the latter's feet have grown out, and he is now a much better horse than when he ran in Hunt's John Harper's colors. His feet were then in a scrubby condition, notwithstanding which he ran all his races gamely.

The celebrated four-year-old filly Anate Bash broke down at Nashville Oct. 24. She was owned by Eliot & McCormack, and won the two-year-old event at New-Orleans last Spring. Mr. Eliot was one of the gamest men ever seen, and it was the intention of his executors to enter her in the $20,000 purse at New-Orleans.

Mr. D. R. Harness, of Chillicothe, has parted with an excellent colt Meteor for $2,000, the purchaser being Colonel Bell, of this City. Mr. Whitehead, of Cincinnati, has purchased the Lady Gladiator for Mr. Hy. Sussmann, Mr. Hy. Sussmann, of Mobile, has purchased John Sut, a good colt in his yearling form, of Messrs. Lewis and Maud Tuttle. Mr. Gerritson, of Hartford, has purchased Jersey Derby, who will come in contact with him again on the four-year-old events next season.

The horse disease among the trotters is abating. American Girl, George Palmer, and Lottery, who had severe attacks, are doing well. Fred. Triumph, Castle Boy, Henry, Charlie Green and others who caught the infection are recovering.

THE DUTIES OF VOTERS.

Rev. W. H. Cooke on the Consequences of Neglect.

At the morning service yesterday at St. John's Chapel, Varick-street, Rev. W. H. Cooke delivered a sermon on the rights and duties of voters. The subject, he said, was suggested by the Gospel for the day, St. Matthew xxii, 21, "Render unto Cæsar the things which are Cæsar's, and unto God the things which are God's." The circumstances which led to this reply, the preacher said, were worthy of note. The mission of Christ was a revolutionary one; the Jewish people rejected the new doctrine, and took council how to meet the revolutionary announcement, which, being opposed to theocracy, they endeavored to show was seditious. The teachings of Christ would have the tendency, in ordinary political language, to overthrow the ruling power, for with a religious revolution would be engendered a change of feeling toward the rulers. The theocrats wished, therefore, to demonstrate that the new revolution was a political revolution, and sent their disciples to entangle Christ in his answers. The question asked was a cunning one and cunningly put: "Is it lawful to pay tribute to Cæsar or not?" or, it might be rendered in our Christian times, "Are politics and religion essentially wedded?" The answer was such as in one sense to render it "no," and in another sense "yes." "Render unto Cæsar the things which are Cæsar's," or render unto the State the full measure of the obligations due from you to it. It would seem as if the gospel for the day had expressly a bearing upon the approaching election. We commend to the male adult, who lays any claim to citizenship and patriotism, it seems to imply that he had every Christian right to possess political opinions, and to act in accordance therewith. Cæsar was the recognized sovereign of the land; his coins were used in trade and commerce, and those who had taken and used these coins it was required that they should render a just obligation. If this was such an imperative duty to a perhaps tyrannical and certainly distasteful government, how much more so is it required towards a Christian, of the people? It is the duty of every Christian, man to throw the whole weight of his influence where it can be the most effective for the public good, and he has no right to withdraw that influence. This duty is increased by the representative nature of the Government under which we live, for those rulers we elect, if they prove faithless, rulers can also destroy them. As that power is given to every individual of a proper age, so is it his bounden duty to exercise it. If the primaries are packed, and the ballot corrupt, then the duty of the Christian is made the more imperative to attend the one and depose the other. If the people will only be virtuous, then fraud must stand abashed,

Notices.

We cannot notice anonymous communications. In all cases we require the name and address, not for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

We cannot under any circumstances return rejected communications, nor can we undertake to preserve manuscripts.

We beg to give notice that the election returns will be exhibited by us at the corner of Twenty-third-street and Fifth-avenue, to-morrow night. A special wire from this office will be laid to Twenty-third-street, and the returns will be displayed by means of the stereopticon—as on the night of the 8th of October.

No returns will be exhibited in this office. We are making an extensive enlargement of our premises, and cannot allow any persons within our publication office on Tuesday night. A great interruption of our business is occasioned by the concourse which usually fills our office on election nights, and we have studied the convenience of the public in arranging for the full and prompt display of returns up-town. There will be no admission to our publication office or editorial rooms to-morrow night.

Gen. DIX will undoubtedly be our next Governor if the people pay a due regard to their own interests. KERNAN is only Tammany under a respectable exterior. Gov. SEYMOUR, the World, and the Tribune say he ought to be elected because he is a Catholic. We say that it is not a penal offence for any man to be a Protestant. On grounds apart from religion, Gen. DIX is incomparably superior to KERNAN. KERNAN, according to Mr. GREELEY himself, was "an envenomed Copperhead." Gen. DIX was always faithful to the Union. KERNAN is surrounded by the entire Tammany gang. Gen. DIX is absolutely independent of all organizations, and would be the faithful servant of the people. KERNAN would be under the thumb of the Seymours, the Brookses, and the Fernando Woods. Gen. DIX is not the man to submit to anybody's dictation. Then remember that our candidate for Lieutenant-Governor is an honest man and a brave soldier, and that our State ticket all through is one of the strongest and best ever submitted to the people. Can any man hesitate in his choice between the Democratic and Republican candidates? GRANT and WILSON—DIX and HAVEMEYER: these should be our watchwords to-morrow.

The old woman of the World is getting scared as election day approaches. Quoth she: "We do but utter words of truth and soberness when we avow our strong convictions that the present political situation of the country is full of gravity and peril." Mercy on us! This is a terrible discovery. But listen to the poor old lady still further: "The intelligent answer that must be given to the question, 'Where are we?' is sufficiently appalling, but when that higher question, 'Whither do we tend?' has been attentively considered and honestly answered, enough has been found to dictate the immediate necessity of 'putting on the brakes.'" Here we have a very fair sample of the "elegant English" and "philosophic thought" sometimes facetiously attributed to the World by its contemporaries. The sentence we have quoted is like UNSWORTH's campaign speech, which concluded blindly in the lugubrious question, "Where are we now?" accompanied with a dive underneath the table. The old lady of the World hysterically asks, "Whither do we tend?" In the direction of Bloomingdale, apparently—but we will give her a bit of advice. Let her soak her feet in warm water, take a forma of hot gruel, put on her biggest mob cap, tie a comforter round her neck, and go to bed and stay there till Wednesday morning. By that time this "appalling" election will be over, and she can put her nose out of doors again without fear of a revolution.

Whatever else the Republicans of the First Congressional District of Connecticut may omit to do, they should make every possible effort to swell the majority of Gen. JOSEPH R. HAWLEY. We will not insult the district by admitting the possibility that it can elect Mr. EATON, but with such a competitor, Gen. HAWLEY, tried in peace as well as war, and always true, should have a majority running far into the thousands. Let the Republicans see to it that they honor themselves by honoring Gen. HAWLEY.

Greeleyism here, in its Democratic aspect, is nothing more than an attempt upon the part of the Democrats to regain complete control of New-York State and City. They never expected to elect GREELEY, hardly have hoped to give him the vote of New-York; but they do expect, with his help, to elect their State ticket, maintain, if not increase, their present ratio of representation in Congress, and secure the Assembly, the Mayor, Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen. Republicans who do not desire to aid in carrying all this grist to the Democratic mill, and thus help to restore to Tammany the power to steal, will vote all the Republican tickets straight through. Let them do that, and the chief object of the Cincinnati conspiracy, so far as the Democrats are concerned, is defeated.

By a special act of Congress, the Presidential election is directed to be held in Louisiana on the same day as the State election, which the Constitution provides shall take place on the first Monday in November. Louisiana, therefore, votes for President as well as State officers today, and the returns from the State will be looked for with great interest. We have never been very confident as to the result in this State, but of late the prospect has improved, and there seems to be a strong probability that Gen. GRANT will carry the State, and Hon. WM. P. KELLOGG be elected Governor. This will be a sad day for Louisiana if such is not the result of the election there.

Republicans of Ulster and Greene should not forget that they have a State Senator to elect in place of Hon. JACOB HARDENBERGH, deceased, and that they have a creditable candidate in Hon. JOHN SANDERSON. He can be elected on a full, fair vote, and we hope the Republicans will not fail to return him.

In the Eighteenth District, BERNARD BIGLIN is the Republican candidate for the Assembly. He has a good chance of election, though his district is ordinarily Democratic, unless he is defeated by a few hundred Republican votes being cast for JOHN P. CROSBY. Mr. CROSBY has been nominated against his own wishes by a few very respectable persons. He is an unexceptionable man—in some respects the superior of Mr. BIGLIN—but there is no possible chance of his election. Nothing has been or can be said against Mr. BIGLIN, except that he is a poor man. His character is excellent; he has great personal popularity, and, under the circumstances, every one who does not desire to see the Tammany candidate elected should vote for BIGLIN.

Fraudulent tickets of all sorts are being constantly brought to our attention. Among the latest of these is one extensively circulated in Westchester County, having on it the name of CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW, instead of that of Gen. JOHN C. ROBINSON for Lieutenant-Governor. The only safe way for Republicans is to carefully examine every name upon their ballots before depositing them in the boxes.

The Republicans of the Seventh Assembly District have never had a more capable and honest candidate than Mr. GEORGE W. CLARKE, and they should spare no effort to give him a large majority. It is a sign of returning purity in our politics when such men as Mr. CLARKE consent to become candidates for the Assembly. He is one of the oldest citizens of the district in which he is a candidate, has long conducted an educational institution of the highest character, and being without reproach in all the relations of life, every Republican should work for him and vote for him.

It is said, in some of the papers, that an attempt will be made by Mr. O'BRIEN's friends to interfere with the Havemeyer boxes to-morrow. All rumors of this kind we discredit. We fully believe that the election will pass over in perfect quiet. It is important for Mr. O'BRIEN that his friends should keep the peace, for even if the slightest disturbance could be traced to him, it would be a sudden end to all his speculations for the future.

Just after the Baltimore Convention, Senator WILSON publicly prophesied that Gen. GRANT would carry twenty-seven States, and Gov. B. GRATZ BROWN, about the same time, as publicly said Gen. GRANT could carry but three States. Both gentlemen will soon have occasion to revise their estimates, but Senator WILSON has a much pleasanter job than his competitor.

Refuse all offers to trade. Remember that GREELEY votes are worthless. Vote the whole Republican ticket, National, State, Assembly, County and Municipal, thereby bringing the infamous coalition to complete ruin. The Democrats went into the Greeley movement without a hope of his election, and merely to build up their power in the States and in Congress, with the help of enfeebled Republicans. Especially was this the only object of the coalition in New-York. Decline all offers to trade, your votes for other candidates for Democratic votes for GRANT, and after Tuesday Democracy will be only a tradition. No danger will be incurred by Republicans standing fast to their colors.

We learn from a trustworthy source that the Democratic State Committee claim Virginia by only six thousand majority. Now let our friends work with a will on Tuesday, and they can cast the vote of the Old Dominion for GRANT and WILSON. The present opportunity to place Virginia in line with the civilization of the age is one which should not be neglected.

There cannot be too many good Republicans in the Assembly, and the Twenty-first District of New-York should not fail to elect WM. HAW, JR. Last year he did substantial service, and submitted to a personal sacrifice in the cause of Reform, by withdrawing from the Senatorial contest, and thereby securing the defeat of the notorious HARRY GENET. His chief opponent now is nothing better than a tool of Tammany, and the citizens of his district owe it to themselves to send him to the Assembly. Let every Republican vote for him and he will be elected.

LITTLEJOHN will be of little use to anybody but the corruptionists in the next Assembly, and if the people of the First District of Oswego do not desire to be disgraced by such a Representative, let them make sure of the election of Hon. DANIEL G. FOTT, who has been tried and found true.

In telling the country what Mr. GREELEY "means to do" if elected, his organ entirely ignores the question of amnesty. Has Mr. GREELEY, then, determined that he is not "above all things the candidate of universal amnesty?" He played that card very freely in his Western tour; is it played out?

According to the Greeley organ, the election in Georgia "was a Southern protest against the attempt to reopen the questions settled by the war." What questions? Impartial suffrage and equality before the law? The Georgia "protest against reopening" these was made by violently depriving the negroes of their votes, and refusing to give them justice in the State Courts. It must be a comfort to men who connect such absurdities that to-morrow there will be an end of it.

An address has been issued by the Democratic State Committee of Tennessee to their voters, in which they are begged to rally to the support of the ex-rebel Gen. B. F. CHEATHAM for Congressman at Large, as against ANDY JOHNSON. It is stated that if the Democrats persist in supporting independent candidates, there is great danger of the election of HORACE MAYNARD, and of at least three Republican candidates in the districts. We are so much in the way of getting good news from everywhere of late, that we are not in the least surprised by these pleasant tidings from a Democratic source.

We publish on the second page this morning a partial list of names of persons who, so far as can be ascertained, have registered without having a right to vote. Warrants for most of these persons will be in the hands of Deputy Marshals on election day. If any of our readers discover any errors in this list they are requested to apprise Chief Supervisor DAVENPORT, No. 41 Chambers-street.

SCANNELL followed a man for three years for the purpose of killing him. He succeeded in shooting him some two years ago, but the victim recovered. On Saturday he accomplished his long and carefully premeditated crime—shooting the object of his pursuit four or five times, until the poor fellow was literally blown to atoms. A crowd stood looking on. A more cold-blooded, cowardly, devilish murder was never perpetrated. Perhaps we had better not say anything about it. How many murderers are there now in the Tombs, laughing at our laws, and proving that justice is dead? SCANNELL knows he will get off all right. What is the good of making a fuss about it? He only killed a man, and the poor fellow is insane.

A New Consideration.

1. GREELEY's election would mean the unsettling of business all over the country.—Gen. GRANT's would instantly lead to the recovery of trade from the excitement of a Presidential election, and insure the continued prosperity of the entire Union.

2. GREELEY's election would mean the installment in office of some of the very worst men in the country. FENTON and BROOKS and FERNANDO WOOD have not been working for GREELEY without hope of reward.—GRANT's re-election would inevitably lead to thorough and comprehensive civil service reform, for he has already attested his desire for such a measure, and the Republican Party is pledged to support it.

3. GREELEY's election would involve fresh disturbances at the South, where he and his friends have revived expectations which can never be realized.—GRANT's re-election would allay political excitement at the South, and be accepted as final evidence that the people are determined that the results of the war shall not be disturbed.

4. GREELEY's election would lead to all sorts of wild and chaotic experiments in our financial policy.—GRANT's re-election would insure perseverance in a course which has met, in the main, with the approbation of the country.

5. GREELEY's election would mean the return to power of the very worst class of Democrats, hungry for the spoils of office, and indifferent to questions of honor or principle.—GRANT's re-election secures us four years of peaceful progress, and will enable the Republican Party to carry out numerous measures worthy of its achievements in the past.

6. GREELEY's election would mean, so far as New-York State is concerned, the revival of Tammany, and the utter loss of all the positions we won last year.—GRANT's re-election would bury Tammany and all its supporters fifty fathoms deep.

To-Morrow.

We desire to remind our readers that the Republican Party is entitled to the vote, to-morrow, of every man who approves its principles, and prefers its candidates to those of the Democracy. The canvass has been a long and laborious one. Every possible means has been used to lay before the voters the material for a sound judgment. It remains for those who are convinced that the Republican Party is the safest party for the country, to give force to that conviction at the ballot-box. We urge our friends, therefore, to let no unimportant matter deprive them of the opportunity which comes once for all, but to vote.

We ask them also, in the interest of the cause they sustain, to cast their votes as early as possible. It will make a Republican victory easier and greater. In this City the polls close at 4 o'clock, and the necessity of voting early in the day is apparent.

It is a pleasure to us to reflect, on the eve of election day, that the men and measures we have asked our readers to sustain have stood well the test of a long and very energetic campaign. As for our candidates, nearly every one of them has been assailed in the most violent manner, and especially the chief and worthiest of them, Gen. GRANT; for all of them we ask the approval of our friends today with as much confidence as ever that it is deserved and will be given.

We wish again to say that those who approve of Gen. GRANT as President, should give their votes to provide him with an efficient support in Congress. The Democrats are making desperate efforts to elect enough Representatives to embarrass the Administration, and pave the way for some recovery of the ground lost by the blunder at Baltimore. They should be defeated. What the country wants is not merely a defeat of Democracy in "the last ditch," but such a dispersion of their forces as took place in LEE's after Appomattox. It wants a National Government utterly free from the danger of a Democratic reaction. To this end, let us defeat for Congress every Democratic candidate we can.

In our own State, a double importance attaches to a full anti-Democratic vote. We wish to put New-York in the Republican line; and we wish to defeat the efforts of the Tammany Ring to retain possession of the State Executive, and to gain a foothold in the Legislature. Every voter knows by this time that the election of KERNAN and DEPEW would be the success of the plot which opened in the last Legislature with the defeat of the most important Reform measures. It would, moreover, be the success of a most dangerous attempt to introduce religion and race into our State politics. The election of Gens. DIX and ROBINSON, on the contrary, would be a great victory for the safest principles of Government in all respects, and a special victory over corruption as embodied in Tammany.

The same reasons that make the choice of Gens. DIX and ROBINSON wise, make necessary the election of honest Assemblymen. As to the question, who are honest candidates for Assembly, we believe that, with very few exceptions—which we have frankly pointed out—they are the Republicans.

In our own City, the election of Mr. HAVEMEYER would secure, as nothing else possibly could, the completion of Reform. For this supreme reason, which no honest man can afford to ignore, and because it will give us an able, upright, and experienced Mayor, we ask every friend of Reform, of whatever party, to vote for Mr. HAVEMEYER.

Of equal importance, and for similar reasons, is the election of our Judiciary ticket. For the Supreme Court, BARNARD's place, NOAH DAVIS; for Judge of the Superior Court, HOOPER C. VAN VORST; for Judge of the City Court, JOSIAH SUTHERLAND—are men to vote for; and when you vote for them, you have rendered a direct and great service to sound government.

There is, as our readers have long since seen, a remarkable unity in the reasons for supporting the Republican candidates in the National, State and Municipal elections. We are glad to be able unreservedly to say, that all are the candidates most likely to give us real Reform. Vote for them all to-morrow, and vote early.

The Mayoralty.

The trickery and imposture which have marked the Greeley campaign from the beginning are to be continued to the very end. We need not remind our readers that the Tribune was half filled for several weeks with violent abuse of Senator O'BRIEN. He was a thief, a ruffian, a confederate of murderers. The "Grant Party" was in secret alliance with him, &c., &c. All of a sudden this abuse ceased. And why? Because ETHAN ALLEN and JOHN COCHRANE went to the Tribune and promised that if it did stop, O'BRIEN could be induced to run the Greeley and Brown ticket out of his boxes. "That settled it." All the Greeley papers—including the Springfield Republican—instantly dropped Mr. O'BRIEN, and the Tribune suddenly recollected that it was a "newspaper," and consequently was bound to report O'BRIEN's speeches.

We are now able to announce, on undoubted authority, that AUGUSTUS SCHELL and JOHN COCHRANE have proposed to throw over LAWRENCE as the Tammany candidate for Mayor, provided O'BRIEN will help GREELEY and BROWN. This is a fact. What O'BRIEN intends to do about it we have not heard.

In the meantime, the Democratic papers keep up the shallow pretense that the Republicans are not in earnest in seeking the election of Mr. HAVEMEYER. Mr. OTTENDORFER has joined in this cry, for reasons best known to himself. The World of yesterday takes it up with its usual disregard of truth and decency. It says: "The Times is lukewarm; and it is well known that its principal man JONES is daily counseling with O'BRIEN and helping along his canvass." When we speak of the World, we are apt to be in the habit of referring to the "principal man MARBLE," who recently wrote a letter to certify that he was not dead, and succeeded in proving that he was likewise not in his right mind. His inability to tell the truth is as evident now as it has been at any period in his versatile career. We are earnestly in favor of Mr. HAVEMEYER's election; we did more than any other journal or political combination to bring about his nomination, and we are now giving to him more space every day than we give even to our Presidential candidate. What on earth are we expected to do more than we have done? On Friday we had four editorials asking our fellow-citizens to support HAVEMEYER—on Saturday several more—yesterday several more—and so it goes on day after day. Are we to surrender the whole of our space to Mr. HAVEMEYER? He figures more prominently in these columns now than Gen. GRANT himself.

The truth is that but for the TIMES Mr. HAVEMEYER might never have been nominated, and no one knows it better than Mr. O'BRIEN. We now entreat our citizens, for the hundredth time, to vote for Mr. HAVEMEYER—but we cannot print his name all over this paper. We cannot stand at street corners shrieking for HAVEMEYER. This is a matter which the voters have in their own hands. Is not Mr. HAVEMEYER known to them all? Need we be writing the history of his life day after day? Recollect what the Tribune and MARBLE—if names are to be dragged in in this unseemly fashion—have previously said about Mr. HAVEMEYER's nomination. They stuck to it for some days that he was only put up as a "dummy." Next, that Mr. O'BRIEN had been cruelly thrown overboard by the TIMES. Next, that the TIMES was helping him. Next, that we only pretended to help him. And all the while our course has been perfectly above-board and simple. We demanded a good nomination for Mayor, and when Mr. HAVEMEYER received the nomination, we promptly and heartily supported him. And in revenge for our doing so, Mr. O'BRIEN is invited by SCHELL and COCHRANE to get his men to vote for GREELEY, who has denounced O'BRIEN as a thief and a convict.

If our citizens vote for any other Mayor but HAVEMEYER, they will immensely astonish us, and will deserve all the confusion which will necessarily arise in City affairs as a consequence of their folly. Even SCHELL has sold out LAWRENCE. You cannot find a word in the Tribune against O'BRIEN's candidacy. But, it is said, "why don't you call O'BRIEN a thief?" We answer, because we don't believe he is one. We oppose him in his present enterprise—but we will not unnecessarily blacken his character. If "MARBLE" or the Staats Zeitung wish that done, why not do it themselves? Why does not the Tribune do it today? O'BRIEN has a right to offer himself for Mayor; this is a free country—but we cannot advise people to vote for him. We wish to be distinctly understood—Mr. O'BRIEN did much better in the Senate last session than many Republicans. But, in our opinion, he is aiming too high now. HAVEMEYER is the only candidate for Mayor for whom it would be safe to vote. How on earth we can say this more strongly than we have been doing ever since his nomination, it puzzles us to make out. Cannot the people of this City see for themselves, without a word from us, that HAVEMEYER is the proper man for Mayor? We could not get O'BRIEN a hundred votes if we tried ever so hard.

The truth is, that the remarks of the World are only intended to befog the public, and conceal some dirty scheme in which the "principal man" and his confederates are themselves engaged. It is the simplest issue ever presented to an intelligent people. HAVEMEYER or O'BRIEN—which will you have for Mayor? Suppose we said O'BRIEN, would you, reader, be fool enough to vote for him? As it happens, we say HAVEMEYER—and we will venture for once upon a prediction, and it is this—that Mr. HAVEMEYER will be elected Mayor to-morrow by an overwhelming majority.

He is Here.

The World of yesterday had the following tremendous announcement:

"Gov. HOFFMAN will arrive at the Clarendon Hotel this morning, where he will remain until after the election on Tuesday, in readiness to take any measures that may be necessary to protect the rights of our citizens against the aggressions, intimidations, and unlawful arrests of 'keyhole' DAVENPORT and his Custom-house spies."

If there is any meaning whatever in the above, it must be taken as an attempt to intimidate the United States officials in the execution of the law of Congress by the awful presence here on election day of Gov. JOHN T. HOFFMAN. Viewed in this light, it is simply ridiculous. There has not been an election in this City for half a century where there was less inducement on the part of any one to disturb the public peace, or less likelihood of there being any disturbance, than at the election to-morrow. Fortunately, the men who have been the authors of all violence on election days in years past are now without friends or followers enough to create a row, and are themselves in mortal fear of the terrors of the law hereafter to be executed against their own persons. For the first time in ten years, we are likely to have a really honest election, and an honest election is synonymous with a peaceable election. The Democratic Party, and their "Liberal" allies would doubtless be glad if they could find some pretext for a breach of the peace on Tuesday, in order that they might charge it against the opposition after the election. The announcement that Gov. HOFFMAN has come down from Albany "to protect the rights of our citizens," is an artful way of insinuating that their rights are in danger, and, so far as it has any effect at all, is calculated to incite the disturbances that it professes a desire to guard against. But the trick will fail. There will be no occasion for HOFFMAN's presence in New-York; if there were, he would be sure to hasten back to Albany, as he did at the time of the July riots of last year. It was hardly worth while for the Governor to lose the chance of cipher-ing his vote for GREELEY by absenting himself from Albany on election day. The "Liberal" candidate will need his vote for more than our citizens will need his presence here.

Another of Judge Sedgwick's Victims.

Judge GUSTAVUS S. BEDFORD has caused to be circulated throughout the City a circular, signed by thirty or more prominent citizens, indorsing his fitness for City Judge, and recommending his re-election. This indorsement was given months ago, when there appeared to be a hope that Judge BEDFORD was in favor of genuine reform, and was actuated by honest motives. We need not say how grievously he has disappointed those who indulged this hope, and how little right he has to use the names of his former indorsers at the present time. Inclosed in his circular, which has been left at every house up-town, are the State and County tickets of both political parties, with a lot of pasters, inscribed with the name of BEDFORD for City Judge, which voters are requested to paste over the name of the opposition candidate. Let no Republican or friend of an honest Judiciary be deceived by this trick. Judge SUTHERLAND is the Reform candidate for City Judge, and every voter of both parties who wishes to rescue our Judiciary from the discredit into which it has fallen should be sure to vote for him.

AMUSEMENTS.

Notes and Announcements.

We have only space to record the complete success of Mr. Maretzek's first Sunday concert, given at Wallack's Theatre, last evening. The audience was very large, and the applause enthusiastic. The first part of the programme consisted of selections from Rossini's "Stabat Mater," recited by Signori Vissani and Coulon, Mme. Lovielle and Señorita Sanz, and the full chorus of the Academy. In the second part of the performance, Signori Abrugnedo, Moriani, Jamet and Coulon, Miss Doria, and Señorita Sanz were concerned. M. Jamet, after being compelled to repeat the rondo "Dio dell'Or," was forced to supplement his share of the evening's work with the serenade from "Faust." Señorita Sanz was equally honored, and she sang thrice instead of once.... At the Academy of Music, this evening, Mme. Lucca will be heard in "La Favorita."..... "Le Perichole" is to be sung this night at the Olympic.

MR. BONAWITZ'S CONCERT.

On Thursday evening next, Mr. J. H. Bonawitz will give, with the aid of a full orchestra, a concert at Steinway Hall. Mr. Bonawitz, who is known already to the general public as a most capable pianist, will, on the occasion we refer to, make clear his claims to a high rank as a composer. The artist's piano compositions are already familiar to students of that instrument. For Thursday two fresh and important works are to be expected: an "Introduction and Scherzo," for piano and orchestra, and a symphony (No. 3) in A minor.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

Mr. Fenton's Private Secretary Claims His Pound of Flesh—He Reminds the Senator Disagreeably of "The Bond."

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—It has been understood for some time that Mr. W. P. Tisdel, private secretary to Mr. Fenton, was a candidate for the Marshalship of the Supreme Court. Mr. Tisdel labored very actively to secure the election of Mr. Parsons, the Marshal for some time past, to the House of Representatives as a regular Republican candidate from Ohio. It seems that Mr. Fenton wrote a fault-finding letter to Mr. Tisdel for this action, and had his attention called in reply to the fact that before the coalition on the Presidential candidate was formed, a bargain was made by which Mr. Tisdel hoped to gain the place of Mr. Parsons, and that this was not annulled by the subsequent articles of political confederation on Greeley. The position of Marshal is a very pleasant one, the pay and opportunities for a thrifty young man being good, and the contest for it is growing animated, the known applicants all being Greeley men.

THE LOBBY PREPARING FOR WORK.

The Washington lobby is preparing for the Winter campaign. One of the many minor schemes puts in an appearance today through the columns of a Sunday paper. An attempt was made last year to have all the electrical gas-lighting apparatus in the Capitol torn out and replaced at a great expense with a new and untried patent. It failed, because Mr. Clark, the architect, could not be induced to advise the change till satisfied by a trial of the utility of the new machine. The parties in interest now begin their case with an indecent attack upon Mr. Clark in an article full of vile abuse, but without any charges affecting his character or integrity.

HOTEL REOPENING.

There will be a great change for the better in the character and extent of hotel accommodations in Washington this Winter over last. Several of the hotels which closed have been renovated and are already open or will be by the meeting of Congress. Willard's, which has been closed a year and a half, has during that time been renovated, partially remodeled, and newly furnished throughout. It was open last night for the reception of friends. The Kirkwood, a famous resort of Southern politicians in the past, has been remodeled, and is announced to be reopened by the time of President Grant's inauguration for a second term. There will be accommodations in the city for more strangers than ever before.

TENNESSEE.

A private letter from Knoxville, Tenn., says: "The estimate of the vote in the State is about 200,000. Of this we claim 18,000 for Maynard, which will elect him. We hope to reduce Greeley's majority down to 20,000. We will carry this, the famous 'Battering-ram District,' made to gerrymander Maynard out of Congress. We hope for gains in two other districts."

BOND PURCHASES AND GOLD SALES FOR NOVEMBER.

The Acting Secretary of the Treasury has directed the Assistant Treasurer at New-York to purchase $1,000,000 of bonds on each Wednesday and to sell $1,000,000 of gold each Thursday during the month of November.

New-Jersey.

All our reports from New-Jersey justify the expectation that it will give a handsome majority for the Republican ticket. The canvass during the last five weeks has been characterized by great activity on the part of the Republicans, while the Greeleyites, until within a fortnight, have remained utterly listless, their meetings, even when attempted, proving utter failures. In all, speakers have been furnished for 412 meetings by the Republican State Committee, while nearly as many more have spoken to neighborhood assemblies—all parts of the State being thus thoroughly awakened. Secretary Robeson has spoken in fifteen of the twenty-one counties, Senator Frelinghuysen has addressed fourteen meetings, all remarkable both for numbers and enthusiasm; Secretaries Boutwell, Creswell and Delano, and Speaker Blaine, have spoken at six of the principal centres of population.

The indications are that a very full vote will be polled, especially in Hudson County, where, in certain Democratic districts, there has been an enormous, and, as is believed, fraudulent registry. Supervisors of election have been appointed for all these districts, and it is hoped that serious frauds will in this way be prevented. A prominent Democratic politician of Jersey City was in Philadelphia last week, making arrangements for the importation of repeaters, but the precautions are so ample that no effort of the kind to swell the Democratic vote will be likely to succeed. In Newark, Trenton, and other cities, the best class of citizens have registered in large numbers, and a heavy Republican vote may, for aught appears, be considered as certain, to be polled. The Democratic vote in the agricultural and rural districts will fall very much behind that of last year.

A FULL CONFESSION.

Interesting Revelations from the Greeley Head-Quarters.—What "Philosopher's Chemistry" Has Done to Our Friends.—AN ADMISSION THAT HE IS HOPELESSLY BEATEN.

Below will be found some extracts from a letter written by the late Secretary of the Liberal Republican National Committee. After a lengthy recital of the quarrels, jealousies and inefficiency which have disorganized the Greeley head-quarters during the campaign the writer says:

Cochrane is a man of ability, but he is powerless for lack of recognition and support. Hutchins has brains, but he is doing nothing. Fenton, with greater elements of power, a lean, spare Cassius that thinks too much, smells defeat afar off, and has left the ship to steer itself; and the great Irish orator, Stephen J. Meany, and the Labor Reformer, John F. Wolfe, and the old war-horse Hiram P. Crosier, and the dashing Buchananite John Pope Hodnett, and many others of our cause are throwing themselves into the breach, trying to do gallant service, at their own expense, but it's no use. Our cause is hopelessly lost—not through party spite, and spleens and jealousies, and inefficiency and folly, if not the corruption of our own people.

Our party was made up of a "shake hands across the chasm" of all the cerebreads and disaffected elements of the United States. It may be that it would have been superior generalship to have held the Secessionists, and Union Leaguers, and Pro-slavery men, and Abolitionists, and New Nationalists and States Rights, and Free Democrats and War Democrats, and Protectionists and Free-traders, and Manufacturers, and Labor Reformers and Women's Rights, and Spiritualists and Internationals, and Catholics and the United Sons of America into our party; but I think it could have been done, as well as to have cemented a part of the negro vote. But it's too late now. The Woman's Rights, and Spiritualists, and "Reformers" of all grades and ideas are against us; and even the Democrats won't vote the ticket.

We shall lose Alabama, for our friends are divided and quarreling with themselves, as they seem to be everywhere. Nor need we be surprised to lose in the South, for they cannot afford to fight the question along in view of the Northern are showing so much of folly, not to say bad faith, that their own interest compels them to strike hands with Grant, who is stronger than his party. We might hope to carry Connecticut but many leading Democrats are against us. I may enumerate as specimens, only, Col. Reed, Starke, ex-Senator from Oregon, an eloquent gentleman, an old-line Democrat, a wealthy man, and, from his inherent powers, destined to be of influence any where; and the Fitches, also wealthy and influential, and very many others of that State, who are reported to me by Mr. Tilton, of No. 3 Liberty-street, New-York City, also an old-line Democrat, as against us. They have no faith in Greeley. We may profess to console ourselves with the vain hope that the Pennsylvania election was carried against us by fraud, but the first to the Democrats won't vote for Greeley, and wouldn't even vote for their candidate for Governor lest it might have a moral effect for us in November. So it was in Ohio. We got Liberals enough, and to spare, but the Democrats are opposed to the arch-abolitionist and would prefer Grant, who was once a Democrat. Carl Schurz and Bill Grosvenor greatly injured the cause of liberty when they made it impossible for us to nominate Grats Brown, who would have been elected, and made a live, reliable, and worthy President. We shall lose Florida, for the negroes are for Grant, and our friends are divided there. We shall lose Indiana, for Hendricks' personal popularity cave him the whole Bourbon vote and shot him ahead of our party strength. At best, we cannot hope to have a better showing than as follows: Grant, 297; Greeley, 129; Grant's electoral majority, 168.

Some of our friends claim that we may carry Arkansas, but it went against us when every thing was in our favor, and now that our friends there, a here, are fighting each other like fools, that hope is vain, and our Arkansas friends do not expect victory. But they are gallant and will fight it out on that line and get whipped.

Our people claim Louisiana, although 24,000 against us, simply because Warmoth is Governor. That Warmoth is injurious I do not doubt. And if he were as unscrupulous as they say he is, and were to play fraud, as our Pennsylvania people are said to have done, the Grant party would have a Marshall Murray and a Wm. Sheets to "watch him," and they would say to him, as the girl said to her "feller," "that thing can't be did"—and he didn't. Neither will Warmouth.

Nevada has mines; and miners, who are Democrats are noted for Bourbonism, and the Bourbons are notoriously against us; and with the Pacific Railroad against us we must expect to lose Nevada.

If we hope to carry New-Hampshire because it is Greeley's native state, we are fools.

Some claim that because there are no State officers to be elected in North Carolina we shall win that State. But the Grantites, I know, have passed intense to conserve by vigorous exertions. I wonder whether they think that's to our advantage. If Greeley's friends had all the money as well as willing to help him, and Grant had nothing and nobody, it would be true; but they don't know that Grant and Grant's appointees will work harder for themselves than they would for other fellows—so that we and not they must be the losers, and North Carolina must go for Grant by an increased majority.

Oregon, my noble, energetic, growing little State, I wish I could vote to carry it, but it would be hoping against hope. I know the elements of Oregon, and I know my friends do not write encouragingly.

In New-Jersey, we had a squabble between James M. Scoville and his friends and Gen. Kilpatrick and his friends, and the feud not so big that it seriously injured our cause. Many people complained of Scoville being on the Executive Committee, and poor, silly, weakly, half-idiotic lilliputian Stippleapper, with souls no larger than a babe's rattle-box—puny puppets that rub against gentlemen to give them dignity—called Jim an honest man, no larger what, and tried to get up by pulling Jim down; but the b'hoys stiffened Jim's backbone, and he wouldn't be pulled down. Able men tried to push Jim off the Committee, but he weighed about a ton to the square inch, and their ram, although the machine was oiled by Greeley, was too light. This did not contribute very much to increase our vote in Jersey; and although Kilpatrick, who, by the way, is an able man, and James M. Scovel, who is far from a fool, have compromised, their cohorts have not, and we shall lose Jersey. I like Kilpatrick, who will be Secretary of War if we succeed, but Scovel was rapped out in that fight, and so says Jersey. Bully for Jim. But our friends in Jersey don't hope to carry it without the assistance of money, which I know they can't have. Jersey is lost. I think we shall lose New-York through the folly of our fools. Our leading men are squabbling among themselves, and there is no united effort for success. Tammany, the new Tammany, has kicked the old drivers off the stage, and the people have not learned to obey the lines when pulled in a new way by inexperienced drivers; and to-day Belmont, Tweed, and James O'Brien, have more power than the new leaders of Tammany. Tammany senior was a power, for it owned the Democracy, and could control the thieves, blackleggs, scallawags, rag-tag and bobtail of the City. The Reformers are for Havemeyer and Grant, and the Committee of Seventy, the late Anti-Tweed movers, are for Grant and O'Brien for Havemeyer, and those who formerly controlled the City, and those who have recently obtained control of the City, are for Grant, and against Tammany, Jr., and the whisky-shops, and lazar-houses, and beer-cellers are for O'Brien or Havemeyer, and against Greeley; and the money brokers, railroad men and bankers having refused to give a dollar to Greeley's cause, because they regard it as hopelessly lost, it is supreme nonsense for us to hope for any good thing to come out of this Nazareth. In talking with Belmont yesterday, I learned from that gentleman that whenever hopes of success are reasonable, moneyed men are anxious to give, and more money is offered than can be profitably used, for they want to buy favors. But Bonner would not purchase a sick and dying Dexter for six bits, although willing to pay thirty thousand dollars for an animal that could go. I have been engaged for some weeks among the moneyed men, and have found that they all think our cause lost. Mr. Greeley's Secretary, O'Dwyer, told me last week that had we have carried Pennsylvania or Ohio, we could more easily have raised two hundred and fifty thousand dollars within a day, than we could get one thousand dollars from them until election, as the indications of the future then were, and they are worse for us today. As the rabble and float go with the seeming victors, and thus give victory, our case is as hopelessly against us in New-York as it is certain for us in Georgia, Missouri, and Kentucky. Were I not a Universalist, I fear I should doubt whether the Lord would forgive me for publicly proclaiming a hope of success, when I know we have defeat staring us in the face. I know man will forgive me for professing to think Greeley will be elected, for they who, like myself know that we are now defeated whistle up their courage and boldly proclaim that we shall win a victory. It is hard for me to profess to believe a thing I know to be a lie, but were I to tell the simple truth, I would injure the cause of the right by disaffecting many who now support what I believe to be for the best interests of the people. Taking then the less of two evils I am compelled to appear to believe that we shall win a grand victory, when I know from the many letters I have received from all parts of America that we are ut that State, and at their Convention they send delegates to Baltimore politely received against indifference. Perhaps, on the second count, it cannot vote. Texas has a peculiar Election law, a sort of four-days election business, with the machinery so purposely in the hands of the Governor as is possible. We may lose Texas, for the Governor is against us, but I do not think it is at all probable. Our forces in West Virginia are in worse fighting trim than in any State of the Union, and I should not, therefore, be at all surprised if we are beaten in West Virginia.

Our promise of defeat is largely due to the causes I have enumerated, and to many of our speakers and writers mistaking the issues and the people. It is the nature of mind for us to stand closer to one whom we think abused. The charges of corruption and fraud has ever been brought against an Administration during the excitement of a heated campaign, and the people expect charges to be made at such times, and they do not believe them, as evidenced by their returning to go back on Hartranft. Now, I must confess I don't believe Grant to be a thief. Attorney-General Williams I have known since I was a school. I was admitted to the Bar before him. I practiced law before him, and with him afterward, but no newspaper charges could make me believe him a thief. The great hue and cry about fraud has obscured the real issue before the people, whereas we had the advantage, being right—that of reconstitution and local self-government—the right of States to regulate their own domestic concerns for themselves, free from Executive or Congressional interference. And I can work for what we think is right, and it needs be fight a little, for it may come to that. Hold yourself in readiness for consequences, be they what they may. We have a fair majority of the people, and lose this time because our leaders are either knaves or fools and our people are disorganized and scattered abroad. But between this and four years our line will be dressed, our cohorts drilled, and we will have learned that our leaders must have brains, and then let the Grant Party stand iron under. I am for the people and with the people now and forever. We are undersecrets new, and must trust to Providence and keep our powder dry for another battle.

Preserve this, as I may have occasion to use the substance when election is over. Make my kind regards to Gov. Brown and assure him that I think him the foremost man of our party in America, and that under his standard four years from now we may hope for success if woe does not betide American liberty.

With the highest esteem and consideration for you, Colonel, and a grand disrust for the authors of our ruin, I am, my dear Sir, truly yours,

FOREIGN NOTES.

The new telescope constructed by Mr. Howard Grubb, of Dublin, for the Observatory on the Calton-hill, Edinburgh, is expected to be completed in December next. The mirror is composed of glass upon Foucault's principle, faced with a thin deposit of silver; it will be 24 inches in diameter, with a focus of 10 feet.

The doubts existing as to the burial-place of Amy Robsart have lately been set at rest by Rev. J. Burson, vicar of St. Mary's, Oxford, who, after much research in the Bodleian Library, has discovered the exact spot, and has ushed the following inscription to be placed in the chancel of St. Mary's Church: "In a vault of brick, at the upper end of this quire, was buried Amy Robsart, wife of Lord Robert Dudley, K. G., Sunday, 22d September, A. D. 1560."

The Prince Imperial, who will join the Royal Military Academy as a "Queen's cadet" about the middle of this month, will have for companion the son of Dr. Conneau, the Emperor's physician. Both the young gentlemen had been to Woolwich from Chislehurst, to pass the preliminary examination. Sir David Wood, commandant of the garrison, was endeavoring to obtain a house on Woolwich Common for the Prince's residence, and quarters were also provided for his accommodation in the Academy. Camden House is about six miles from Woolwich, and it was not altogether improbable, in case of any difficulty arising in procuring a suitable residence, that the Prince would ride to and fro night and morning.

A Paris correspondent of the London Daily News says that Marshal Bazaine's health is so precarious that his friends fear he will die before his indictment can be drawn up. Should he live long enough to be brought to judgment they fear the worst that can happen to a soldier will befall him. He is strongly and vigilantly guarded by an officer, almost personally hostile to him, who says if he escapes coming to trial, it will not be through any fault of his. Marshal Bazaine's ill health is aggravated by a nervous terror of committing himself in his answers to the General charged with his "instruction." His counsel has scolded him or not being able to open his mouth without making a blunder. Gen. Rivière, the correspondent learns, is amazed at the want of acuteness which the Marshal has shown. He never seems to perceive the drift of a question, and falls headlong into any pitfall which the prosecution may lay for him.

A Paris telegram recently stated that in a conversation which Cardinal Bonnechose had with M. Thiers, he said that the Pope had no intention whatever of quitting Rome, but was disposed to treat with King Victor Emmanuel, and that the Chevalier Nigra, who had just been received in audience by Count de Rémusat, had confirmed that declaration. Cardinal Bonnechose has written to the Debats as follows, in contradiction of the above statements: "I think it my duty to declare that this note contains nothing true but the intention manifested by the Sovereign Pontiff to remain at Rome as long as circumstances shall permit. As to the allegation that the Pope is disposed to treat with King Victor Emmanuel, it is devoid of all foundation, and that question was not even alluded to in my interview with the President of the Republic."

The London papers mention that an old and esteemed Liverpool lady, Miss Isabella Rather, who was well known for unostentatious charity, has just died in her eightieth year, and by her death a large number of interesting and valuable miniatures will be added to the town museum. These miniatures were formerly the property of the ex-Emperor of the French—then plain Louis Napoleon—having been bought from him by the brother of Miss Rather when he was in pecuniary difficulties, before his accession to power. The miniatures represent different members of his family, including the parents of Napoleon the First and his celebrated Marshals, and after the Emperor's declaration he endeavored, but in vain, to induce Mr. Rather to part with them. The deceased lady was one of the last representatives of an old Puritan family, who were probably among the original members of the first Dissenting chapel in Lancashire.

The death is announced of Sir Thomas John Cochrane, G. C. B., Senior Admiral of the British fleet, in his eighty-third year. The deceased baronet, who was the father of Mr. Alexander Baillie Cochrane, M. P. for the Isle of Wight, was the eldest son of the late Hon. Sir Alexander Forrester Inglis Cochrane, G. C. B., who was the sixth son of the eight Earl of Dundonald. Sir Thomas entered the service at an early age, and was made Post Captain by his father on the 23d day of April, 1806, when he was only about seventeen or eighteen years old. He was appointed Rear-Admiral, Nov. 28, 1854; Vice-Admiral 24th of January, 1860; Vice-Admiral of the United Kingdom in 1869, and Admiral of the Fleet in 1865. He served in the expeditions against Belleisle, Ferrol, Cadiz, Egypt, &c. The deceased Admiral was Governor of Newfoundland from 1825 to 1834, and from the year 1837 to 1841 represented Ipswich in the Conservative interest, having unsuccessfully contested Westminster in 1835. He was Commander-in-Chief of the East India Station from 1842 to 1846.

The Count de Chambord has written a letter to M. La Rocselle, a member of the Assembly, in which he says that France can only be saved by a Monarchy, and protests against the establishment of a Republic, which would be the commencement of social anarchy. The Count de Chambord denies that any difference exists between his principles, who promise peace to men while declaring war against God, and those more prudent individuals who obtain the same end by more covert means. He appeals to the energy of Frenchmen who really love their country, to counteract the weakness and timid compromising counsels of others, and oppose a frank policy to a policy of fictions and lies. He declares that France, at heart, is Catholic and Monarchical, and says: "We must guide France to the haven safely. Nothing can make me deviate from my path. I do not retract one word, nor regret a single act of mine; they have all been inspired by love for my country. Let us have confidence in the mission of France. Europe and the Papacy have need of her, and an old Christian nation like ours cannot, therefore, perish."

On the morning of Oct. 18, at 9 o'clock, the funeral obsequies of Prince Albrecht were celebrated in the palace of the deceased Prince. No one but the members of the Imperial family were present, and the mourners included the Emperor, the Imperial Prince, Prince Alfred, son of the deceased Prince, and Baron Holeucau, his stepson. The funeral sermon was preached in front of the coffin, which was decorated with a crown, and the body was afterward conveyed in an open hearse to the Imperial Palace. At 11 o'clock on Oct. 19 the funeral rites of Prince Albrecht were solemnized in the Dome Cathedral, whither the body had been carried in State from the Palace. Four Colonels held the corners of the pall, and sixteen Majors lifted the coffin to its resting-place. The procession following the coffin was headed by Emperor William, the son and son-in-law of the deceased Prince and Prince Charles. Next came the Princes of the Royal family, and the Princes who have arrived from various parts of Germany to be present at the funeral. When the benediction was pronounced, a salute of thirty-six guns was fired, followed by three volleys of musketry. The Chaplain-General to the forces pronounced the funeral oration, in which he gave a sketch of the life of the deceased Prince.

The British mail from Monrovia contains the news of a cowardly outrage on Mr. W. S. Anderson, one of the commissioners who came to England about twelve months ago to negotiate the Liberian loan, and who was a particular friend of the late unfortunate President Roberts, who was accused of high treason and imprisoned, but who, while endeavoring to escape from jail, was drowned in attempting to reach one of the African mail steamers. It appears that Mr. Anderson and a person named Sharp, a large cotton-planter, were engaged in some legal proceedings, which the latter was decided in favor of Mr. Anderson. The verdict appeared to have exasperated Sharp to such an extent that for some time after the decision he waited for Anderson outside the Court-house at Monrovia. As the latter gentleman came out of the Court-house, and was about descending the steps, Sharp pulled out a revolver and fired at Anderson, inflicting a fearful wound in the head, and completely blowing away a portion of the jaw. The assassin, in returning the revolver to his belt, accidentally wounded himself, one of the chambers exploding, the charge penetrating the lower part of the heart. A correspondent, writing about the affair, says: "It is strange that no steps were taken in the matter, either by the bystanders, or by the police or law officials, to arrest Sharp; but such occurrences are quite common at Monrovia, and generally go unchallenged by the law." Just as the Yedin was leaving Monrovia, intelligence was received on board from shore that Mr. Anderson had succumbed to the injuries inflicted on him by Sharp, but in reference to the latter there was no news, but the general opinion was that he had escaped, and was still at large.

FOR MEMBER OF ASSEMBLY,
JAMES RYAN.

P. H. STEWART,	M. J. SHANDLEY, Chairman.
WM. H. CREED,	Secretaries.

IT IS DUE TO THE CITIZENS OF the Seventeenth Assembly District, Twenty-second Ward, to say that the nomination of a candidate for Member of the Assembly from this district was made by the Committee of Seventy, without consulting any of the associations organized in the Ward to effect political or Municipal reform without regard to party or national politics.

Under these circumstances, it is but just to say that WILLIAM T. GRAFF, who has been nominated for the position, is regarded by a respectable portion of those organizations as eminently qualified by his integrity and ability for the office of legislator; and it is believed by them that the interests of Reform would be promoted by his election.

J. C. SANDERS,
Chairman of Executive Committee of "Twenty-second Ward Council of Political Reform."

POLITICAL.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE CITY OF NEW-YORK:

We, the undersigned citizens of the City of New-York, irrespective of party and of politics, having a pride in all that appertains to the prosperity and good name of our City, and believing further that the only true safety for our personal and for property depends on an incorruptible Judiciary and a strict and impartial administration of all laws, feel called upon at this time to address the people of New-York in behalf of the re-election of Hon. GUNNING S. BEDFORD as City Judge. The history of the judiciary of this City for the past few years has brought Judge Bedford prominently before the public, and he has been called upon to preside at some of the leading criminal trials that have taken place, and where both his ability and integrity, which he held of the Bar and as Assistant District-Attorney, were fully sustained. His judicial course has been carefully watched by the community, and it is a source of sincere congratulation to the friends of law and order that he has kept the judicial ermine spotless; that he has honestly, and without fear, favor or malice, administered the laws; that he has promptly punished all justly convicted criminals, and has stricken terror to the hearts of those who would violate the law, and expect to escape therefrom; and he has, in every instance, perfectly performed every adjudication imposed upon him by his oath of office, and thereby reflected credit upon the Bench, the City and the people of New-York. For these reasons, as citizens having vast interests in this City, we cannot do less than sustain Judge Bedford, and to earnestly urge his unanimous re-election to the office he was elevated to by the people by over 70,000 majority. We appeal to the electors of this City to sustain us by every honorable effort to carry out this purpose, for by thus rewarding Judge Bedford a simple act of justice will be done to a fearless and upright Judge, who has conscientiously performed his duty in vindicating the laws on all occasions, and therein has sustained the rights of the people.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE SEVENTH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT.

At the ensuing election you will be called upon to select a representative in Congress from this district, as between Hon. Conrad Geth, and Hon. Thomas J. Creamer.

Mr. Geth, who was elected last Fall as member of Assembly from the Eighth Assembly District, secured while in the Legislature by his earnest efforts and untiring devotion in the interest of Reform the hearty approbation of every Reform organization in his district, and was warmly commended for his "Committee on Legislation" of the "Committee of Seventy." On the contrary, his antagonist, who will have the support of what is left of the corrupt combination which the citizens of this district so effectually rebuked at the ballot box last Fall, has been thoroughly identified with the late firm of Tweed, Sweeny & Co., for his faithfulness to whom he was rewarded with the position he now holds, as one of the Tax Commissioners of this County. We would therefore recommend for your suffrages the man who has proved himself a zealous, honest, and intelligent legislator at Albany, believing that his record will prove creditable alike to himself and his constituency in any position to which you may elect him.

EIGHTEENTH ASSEMBLY DISTRICT.

Madison-av. to the East River.
CITIZENS' AND COMMITTEE OF SEVENTY TICKET.

We, the undersigned citizens of the Eighteenth Assembly District, after a full investigation, believe that no one of the candidates nominated for the office of Assemblyman from our district by the Tammany Hall organization, the Apollo Hall organization, and the Republican organization, respectively, is fitted to assume the high duties and responsibilities which now, more than at any other time, devolve upon a member of the Legislature. We therefore recommend to our fellow-citizens

John P. Crosby,

CARD.

We, the undersigned, having learned that FREDERICK GERMANN, an esteemed citizen and public officer of the Ninth Ward, has been nominated by the Committee of Seventy, German Reform, and Apollo Hall organizations for Alderman of the City and County of New-York, we take this opportunity to recommend him to the citizens throughout the County as a man worthy of the suffrage of every well-meaning man. Mr. Germann has filled for nine years the office of School Trustee of the Thirteenth Ward, and has received the unanimous indorsement of his fellow-citizens for his honesty, integrity and ability in the cause of public instruction, and we know that his elevation to the Aldermanic Board will add materially to a renewed effort to establish an honest City government.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

No real estate business was transacted at the Exchange on Saturday, Nov. 2, the auction expected to occur, namely, legal sale by James M. Miller of six houses and lots, three each on Forty-third and Forty-fourth streets respectively, 225 feet west of Tenth-avenue, being adjourned until the 23d inst. The receiver's sale of two houses and lots on First-avenue, between One Hundred and Twentieth and One Hundred and Twenty-first streets, in charge of Goodenough & Weber, auctioneers, adjourned from Thursday of last week until today, has, we understand, been settled, and the property withdrawn from the market.

THE BUSINESS OF LAST WEEK.

But comparatively few sales have been made at the Exchange during the past six business days, and none of these consummated have been of sufficient importance to call for special notice. The total value of City property sold for the week ending with Saturday, Nov. 2, amount to but $82,150 as against the sum of $177,325, the figures for the week previous ending with Saturday, Oct. 26—an exceedingly poor showing for the season, but accounted for to a great extent by the interest incident to politics at the present time. Notwithstanding, however, that the public market has been dull, from the reports received and published daily, it would seem that a fair business was being done in the disposition of property at private sale, for during the past week a large number of valuable houses and lots have been sold, and in the main at fair figures. There is a good deal of activity, also, in far up-town lots, particularly in those located on the Dyckman-tract in the vicinity of Two Hundred and Fifth-street and Broadway, not a few having recently changed hands. The prices realized, however, show no very great advance on that obtained at the auctions held a year ago at the Exchange. West-side lots are in demand, and when sold are advancing, and a remarkably strong market is shown. On the east side prices are also fully sustained, although but few transactions have been recently closed; for very fine lots in this class of realty belong to some extent fixed, unless a lot is desired for a specific purpose, a transfer is not apt to be made. To sum up, therefore, the market, while dull in the matter of public auctions, is in some respects active, and in every way strong, with no indication of a decline in values at present, while those familiar with business express the utmost confidence for the future.

SALES FOR THE PRESENT WEEK PROPOSED.

Business during the present week will continue dull and uninteresting, for none of the auctions proposed are of special importance, being mostly Supreme Court sales, and the majority adjournments. After this week, however, with election over, greater activity may confidently be expected. The following is a list of the sales of the week thus far noticed, at which the property described will be offered, the auctions all taking place at the Exchange:

Also, at a resale, by order of the Supreme Court, under the direction of Charles E. Crowell, Esq., referee, the store and lot No. 46 Bleecker-street, between Old and Cortlandt-alleys. Lot 20.6 by 22.6.

The above sale will close the week's business; as for Saturday, Nov. 9, no auctions are announced to occur.

THE DONOGHUE MURDER.

Post-Mortem Examination on Donoghue's Body.

The Nature of His Terrible Wounds—The Ball With Which he Was Shot Two Years Ago by Scannell Found—The Murderer's Behavior in the Station-House.

As might reasonably be expected, the terrible and barbarous murder of Thomas Donoghue, the well-known East-side politician, by John Scannell, proprietor of the Gleaham Hotel on Third-avenue, in Johnson's Pool-room, corner of Twenty-eighth-street and Broadway, on Saturday night, was the great topic of discussion in the City yesterday. The whole history of the case, from the moment when, three years ago, at the death-bed of his brother, Alderman Florence Scanpell, John Scannell swore, by his father's bones, to have Donoghue's life, through the course of the vendetta, the attempt to kill Donoghue at ex-Senator Bradley's stables, shortly after the shooting at the corner of Seventeenth-street and Third-avenue two years ago, down to the murderous outrage of the night before last, was discussed in all its bearings. On all sides among respectable citizens, there was a feeling of horror and condemnation toward Scannell, and by a prominent Police Justice of the City, the case of Crimmins, a member of the Sixty-ninth Regiment, was instanced against Scannell. Crimmins, who lived in Pearl-street, came home from drill to find a drunken ruffian battering in the door of his saloon, and calling his wife vile names. He knocked him down with the musket he carried, and while the man was lying on the ground, stabbed him with his bayonet. He was convicted of murder. Appeals were made to Gov. Morgan, but he, on consultation with the Judges of the Supreme Court, held that the stabbing after Crimmins had knocked the man down, constituted the murderous intent, and refused to pardon the prisoner. Crimmins was hanged in the Tombs prison-yard. In the present instance, during three years of continued efforts to take Donoghue's life, Scannell seemed to have learned surgery, and determined not to shoot his victim in the body as he did before, but rather to direct his assassin bullets at Donoghue's head.

Mr. Stephenson, brother-in-law of Donoghue, who was in Johnson's at the time of the shooting, turned round at the first shot and saw Scannell deliberately firing at a man who lay on the floor of the saloon. With the firing of each shot Scannell changed his position, so as to have a different direction of fire and at the same time to reach the door. On firing the fifth shot he rapidly rushed up the steps. This shows conclusively the premeditated and murderous character of the attack, which, added to the fact that Scannell had followed his victim for over three years, makes the murder one of the most brutal ever committed in this City. Such was the universal opinion expressed by the people yesterday.

ACTION OF THE CORONER.

Yesterday afternoon Coroner Young, Deputy Coroner Marsh, and Drs. A. L. Vandewater and William L. Hardy, proceeded to Donoghue's residence, No. 155 East Eighteenth-street, and impaneled the following jury in the case: Louis Carr, broker, of No. 6 Union-square; Frank A. Lutz, builder, No. 171 Rivington-street; William Simmons, insurance, No. 307 East Nineteenth-street; John Martin, soap manufacturer, No. 102 Park-place; Frank Paul, dry goods, No. 43 West Twenty-second-street; John Bolans, upholsterer, No. 192 Third-avenue; John P. Schmenger, proprietor of Germania Hall, No. 206 Third-avenue; Albert Van Cott, furniture, No. 61 Canal-street; Isaac Lewis, clerk, of No. 105 East Fifteenth-street, and John Van Cott, of No. 23 Pitt-street. Coroner Young addressed the jury, calling attention to the fearful frequency of murderous crimes in the City, and the necessity of prompt and just punishment to prevent a continuous recurrence of such crimes. He had selected them as jurors owing to their reputations as business men, and high character as respectable citizens. He begged of them, whatever might happen, to do their duty without fear or favor, and return a verdict founded on the evidence to be placed before them. Deputy Coroner Marsh, assisted by Drs. Vandewater and Hardy, then made the post-mortem examination on Donoghue's body. Present, while the examination was being made, were Police Surgeon Henry, ex-Police Capt. Brower, Thomas Hardy, Nelson Young, Jr., and many other gentlemen. Outwardly, the body was well preserved, and shows a full muscular development. On the head a circular opening, a quarter of an inch in diameter, with blackened and inverted edges, was found on the left side of the nose, opposite the inner canthus or margin of the eye. This was where the bullet from the first shot entered. A lacerated wound an inch long, through which brain-substance exuded and the skull could be seen to have becomminuted, was found one and a half inches behind and one and a half inches above the upper border of the right ear. This was evidently where the first bullet passed. An irregular opening was found about half an inch above the occipital protuberance, through which the occipital bone was seen to be fractured. This was evidently where the bullet from the second shot entered. The nasal bone was fractured from the entrance of the first bullet, and there were four abrasions on the forehead and cheek where Donoghue had fallen on his face after receiving the first shot. Ecchymosis was strongly marked on both lids of the right eye. A circular wound with inverted blackened edges was found on the inner side of the left arm about four inches above the elbow. This was where the last of the three balls which struck Donoghue entered. It passed through the arm, fracturing the humerus or main upper bone of the arm, and passed out on the anterior aspect of the arm about five inches below the shoulder. An old cicatrice was found two inches below the left nipple. Another cicatrice caused by the entrance of the ball, with which Scannell shot Donoghue, at the corner of Eighteenth-street and Third-avenue, two years ago, was found two inches to the left of the median line and three inches below the left nipple. A probe, passed into the orifice at the left of the nose, penetrated inward, upward and backward toward the right to the depth of six and a half inches. On removing the scalp, a considerable quantity of extravasated blood was found at a point corresponding to the wound over the right ear. On removing the calavarium, a slight extravasation of blood was found beneath the dura mater, more particularly marked over the right posterior lobe of the cerebrum. A small clot was also found at the base of the left anterior lobe. A small clot was also found over the anterior lobe of the left hemisphere. On the brain being removed, the cerebellum, medulla oblongata, and the base of the right hemisphere were found to have been terribly lacerated. A great many fragments of bone had been driven into the brain by the passage of the bullet which entered at the back, and were picked out one by one by the operating surgeons. A fracture of the right parietal bone was found extending from two inches to the right of the median line to the base of the skull. A number of other fractures were found of the small, frontal, orbital plate of frontal, petrous and squamous portion of temporal, occipital and sphenoid bones, which had all mingled together and formed the huge untraceable fracture, resembling a jagged lattice-window in the skull. One ball, entering at the left of the nose, passed through the right anterior lobe of the cerebrum, and made its exit through the wound over the right ear. The other, entering the occipital bone passed through the cerebellum and lodged in the body of the sphenoid bone at the base of the skull, causing a comminuted fracture of the sphenoid and occipital bones. It was taken out with a forceps. It was a very heavy conical ball, and was all jagged and twisted from its passage through the bones. Search was then made for the Derringer ball with which Donoghue was shot two years ago. It was found encysted between the seventh and eighth ribs, directly below the left nipple. The lungs, heart, liver, spleen, kidneys and stomach were found in a perfectly healthy condition. Coroner Young then informed the jury that he would hold the inquest in the case next Friday morning. After the conclusion of the post-mortem, the doctors decided that death resulted from laceration of the brain substance and compression of the brain from fracture of the skull, caused by pistol-shot wounds of the head.

Scannell is confined in the Thirtieth-street Station-house, pending the inquest, and Capt. Burden refuses to allow petty politicians to see him.

Let the Republican fail to remember that Tuesday is a legal holiday, and act upon the knowledge by giving the whole day to his country.

How Politics May be Purified—Discourse Last Evening by Rev. Henry Acton.

"How to vote at the coming election," was the subject, last evening, of a discourse preached by Rev. Henry Acton, at Second-street M. E. Church, who began by alluding to the prevalent corruption of politics and the consequent evils which had befallen this City. In seeking a remedy for such a state of things, the speaker urged his hearers, above all things, to vote themselves. Thousands of voters have been neglecting that important duty, and every vote thus lost cave two to the other side. Let politics be purified by the good men of the community—the Protestant voters, those who owed no allegiance to any foreign potentate, organizing and acting for the best interests of the public. He quoted the words of Wesley: "I look upon my nation as part and parcel of my religion; I love my God and then I love my nation; and I love my nation because it loves its God," and illustrated his remarks with apt quotations from Scripture history.

Farmers throughout the State should take notice that Tuesday is a legal holiday, and set up excursions to the polls in the interest of Grant and Wilson, Dix and Robinson, and the whole Ticket.

TUESDAY, NOV. 5.

Preparations and Arrangements for Election Day.

Every voter is doubtless aware that tomorrow, election day, is a legal holiday. The banks, the Government offices, the Exchange, and nearly all the principal city stores will be closed; commercial paper is not negotiable on the 5th, and notes maturing on that day are not payable until Wednesday. Manufacturers and others employing large numbers of workmen will give their employes sufficient time during the day to go to the polls. All classes will have ample opportunity to perform their duty as citizens of the Republic. The occurrence together of the Presidential, State and municipal elections gives additional interest to the proceedings of to-morrow, and the importance of the issues involved will cause the results of the contest to be looked for with unusual eagerness and anxiety.

DUTIES OF THE POLICE.

The excitement which will doubtless arise in connection with the local contests will necessitate vigilance by the Police authorities. The customary orders in regard to the day were issued by the Superintendent of Police on Friday last. Much work, at once arduous and responsible, falls to the members of the Police force on these occasions. They have to attend the polling places from the hour when the polls open until all the ballots are counted. The enforcement of the election law falls largely upon them; in order to be ready in the vicinity of the polls and about the election booths or boxes; and, above all, they are specially instructed to see that the law prohibiting the sale of liquor on that day is strictly observed.

Before 6 in the morning, at which hour the polls open, the ballot-boxes, properly marked and labeled, with the locks and keys in order, have to be distributed from the several station-houses to the inspectors of election. If any inspectors or poll-clerks are absent from their posts, notice has to be immediately sent to the central office. During the day the Police stand as the guardians of the election officers, and when the last ballot has been counted at night, they take the boxes and the keys, and return them to the station-houses. The returns being sent from each election district in the precinct to the station-house, they are thence immediately transmitted to the central office. In a supplementary order, Superintendent Kelso says:

"No question relative to the progress of the canvass will be answered from the Central Office, but as soon as the canvass of each ticket is completed the result will, on alarm, be transmitted to every station-house for the information of the residents in the vicinity. Reporters will be furnished with returns at this office only."

HINTS TO VOTERS.

In the multiplicity of boxes to be used to-morrow the voter may stand in some danger of taking, and perhaps voting, exactly the ticket he must desires to defeat. There will be over 400 polling places in the City, and near each of these will be placed the boxes of the following parties: Republicans and Reformers generally, Apollo Hall Democracy, Tammany Hall Democracy, Committee of Seventy. Voters should be sure that they get the right tickets, and this can only be done in one way—open them. First make up your mind the tickets you intend to support, and vote no ballot you have not previously examined; for, apart from the confusion which must inevitably arise from the number of persons in the field, it is well known that more tricks and dodges to deceive voters will be attempted in this election than has been known for years. Therefore open your ballots and see that it is all right.

Repeating, it is hoped, can be even made next to impossible by the United States Election law. The verification of the registry has resulted in the discovery of 4,000 fraudulent names. Supervisors and deputy marshals will be present at the polls to enforce the law; therefore repeaters or other fraudulent voters will find their trade has become an exceedingly dangerous one. Immediate arrest may be made under the law, and the culprit tried by Federal authority. These provisions, with those of the State law, will be rigidly enforced, and if a fair vote can possibly be secured in this City, it will be had to-morrow. Some rumors, however, have been circulated that in some districts violence will be attempted.

The Committee of Seventy have issued instructions to Captains of Assembly Districts that they shall deliver to voters bunches of tickets containing the nominations indorsed by the Committee of Seventy, also the Electoral and State tickets, and those only; and that they shall not press upon voters either of the Electoral or State tickets, but offer both. The rooms of the Committee, at the Everett House, will be open all day, in order that every facility may be afforded to those seeking information concerning the election.

Voters should remember that the polls in this City open at 6 A. M. and close at 4 P. M. It is desirable to vote at as early an hour as possible, as late in the day there is usually a crush. Last year the vote fell much below the registry in consequence of voters neglecting to reach the polls in time. The full vote should be polled on this occasion. The question is, whether the reform commenced last year shall be carried on, or whether it shall be allowed to drop by default. Vote under any circumstances, early or late; but as early as you can. Vote without fear of violence or intimidation. The preparations for the prosecution of voters last year, and for the preservation of peace at the polls, are ample, and sufficient to reassure the most timid of voters. Take your ballots, and again we repeat—open them! Be sure you don't vote for anyone but Mr. Havemeyer for Mayor!

Mechanics everywhere should remember that, Tuesday being a legal holiday, they can devote it to the Republican cause in which they are so vitally interested.

Woodhull & Claflin at Ludlow-street Jail.

Mrs. Woodhull and Miss Claflin spent a quiet day in their enforced retirement in Ludlow-street Jail, yesterday. It is not the custom of the Warden to admit visitors to the prisoners on Sunday, but those two persons were informed that their friends would be allowed to see them. Several prominent persons called and tendered their sympathies. They expect that, at the examination today, the liberty of the press will be discussed at length. They maintain that their article is no more obscene than what is printed in the local papers every day and week. They were very comfortable in their cell lodgings, and have every hope that they will be promptly acquitted today.

William A. Smith, the publisher of Woodhull & Claflin's Weekly, who was committed with Col. Blood on Saturday, gave bail in the sum of $5,000 at Jefferson Market Police Court, yesterday, and was released by Justice Fowler. Col. Blood, being unable to procure bail, is still in Jefferson Market Prison.

The Evangelical Societies of the P. E. Church—Its Work and Reports.

A united public meeting of the Evangelical Knowledge, the Evangelical Educational, and the American Church Missionary Societies connected with the Protestant Episcopal Church, took place last evening, in the Church of the Atonement, Rev. W. T. Sabine, Rector, corner of Madison-avenue and Twenty-eighth-street. Right Rev. Bishop Vail, of Kansas, presided. Rev. Dr. Peterkin, of Richmond, Va., delivered the address in behalf of the Evangelical Knowledge Society. Rev. John Cotton Smith, Rector of the Church of the Ascension, of this City, followed with an address in behalf of the Evangelical Educational Society. Rev. Dr. Nicholson, of Newark, N. J., concluding in behalf of the American Church Missionary Society.

Bishop Vail opened the meeting with a few remarks.

Rev. Robt. C. Shattuck, Secretary of the Evangelical Educational Society, read extracts from the annual reports of the rival societies, as follows:

Receipts of the Evangelical Knowledge Society during the past year, including contributions from churches, sales of publications, interest on investments $38,808
Receipts of American Church Missionary Society—money, $32,800; clothing, $4,000 36,800
Receipts of Educational Society 36,540
Total $112,148

This amount shows an increase in the receipts of the Societies, and a very encouraging state of finances, every Society having a small balance in its treasury.

Probable Homicide Last Night.

At 8½ o'clock last night Patrick Brady, of No. 174 Marshall-street, Brooklyn, while drunk, entered the apartments of Frederick Silva, at No. 482 Second-avenue, and grossly insulted Mrs. Silva. Silva, entering the room, struck Brady over the head with a gun-barrel, fracturing his skull. Silva was arrested, and Brady was taken to Bellevue Hospital.

A HIGH-HANDED OUTRAGE.

The Greenpoint Women Petitioners to Pay Enforced Assessments.

A barefaced attempt to wring money from the members of the Police Department has been made in the First Assembly District during the past few days by the Greenpoint leaders, and the effort has partially succeeded, owing to the timidity of a few of the Captains. Knowing that the policemen receive their pay on the first or second day of the month, it was determined to make a raid upon them; accordingly the following circular was prepared and delivered to every man in the First, Second, Third, Fifth, and Twenty-seventh Precincts, which, covering the First, Second, Third and Fifth Wards, comprise the First Assembly District:

HEAD-QUARTERS
FIRST ASSEMBLY DISTRICT
UNION REPUBLICAN ASSOCIATION.
No. 123 WEST BROADWAY,
NEW-YORK, Nov. 2, 1872.

To Mr. Officer .....

SIR: You are hereby notified that you have been assessed the sum of $20 by the Finance Committee of this district, for the purpose of defraying the expenses of the ensuing election. You will please call and pay the same to Amos Stockey, No. 152 Franklin-street, on or before the 5th day of November, 1872.

HENRY SMITH, President.
John Wm. Hoape, Wm. H. Raley, Secretaries.
A. W. Leggett, Vice-President.
Samuel N. Lee, Treasurer.
Francis Chamberlain,
Samuel S. Wyckoff,
A. W. Leggett, William Buckley,
Amos Stockey, James F. Hogan,
James Lee.

RECEIVED, New-York, ... 187
of Mr. ..... the sum of ..... dollars, being amount of above assessment.
For Finance Committee.
4 .....

Every sergeant, patrolman, and door-man in these precincts received a copy of this circular, addressed to him in plain envelopes, in his proper name, the entire batch being handed in by a messenger. The fact that all of the names were correct shows that during the four days, or less, rolls must have been obtained from either the Central Office or the Station-houses. The sums demanded from each were: $15 from Sergeants, $10 from patrolmen, and $6 from doormen, making the aggregate amount about $1,500. When these circulars were served on the First, Third, and Twenty-seventh Precincts a committee of local politicians made their appearance in the station-houses and coolly demanded the money called for in the circulars, and the money was paid by the men, as they were afraid of bodily disorder. Some of the horses which had been supposed fit for work, exhibit ulcerations and swelling, the latter affection being confined to the legs, though the danger of a general relapse is not yet imminent.

THE STREET RAILROADS.

The Second, Third and Eighth avenues and Bleecker-street lines alone held the road yesterday. On the Second-avenue line twenty cars were hauled off, leaving eighty-seven running. All the "short" cars were withdrawn at 6 P. M., and at 1 o'clock this morning the line ceased running altogether. Should the weather be fine today 107 cars will be run. The Third-avenue line ran twenty-four cars from Harlem, the trips terminating at Fifth-street, nearly opposite Cooper Institute. These cars were more crowded than any other, and were found wholly inadequate to the demands of travel. Today an effort will be made to run the full number of cars from the depot to the City Hall, no addition being made, for the present, to the Harlem extension. Three deaths occurred at the stables of this line, yesterday, making a total of thirty-five. On the Fourth-avenue track, four cars were run to connect with the morning and evening trains, the trips terminating at 8 P. M. On the west side, the Eight-avenue was the only line on the road, thirty cars going to Vesey-street, and twenty to Canal-street. To-day the line will run as on Saturday. The Bleecker-street cars ran every five minutes up to 10 P. M. The depots of the Sixth, Broadway and Seventh, Ninth and Belt lines were closed, and, to all outward appearances, deserted. The employes, who usually hang about at all hours of the day and night, had disappeared, and the locality wore an air of desolation. Today these lines will run about two-thirds their full number, the Belt line resuming the east track.

The stage companies have resolved to increase their force as much as possible today, and probably will make three-fourths the full number of trips.

BROOKLYN WITHOUT CARS.

The Railroad officials kept their word, and not a car ran on any track in Brooklyn, except on Bushwick-avenue, in the outskirts of the city. Two lines ran every ten minutes during the day, increasing the interval to fifteen, and finishing at 10 P. M. on twenty-minute time. The horses of these cars is at South Seventh-street Ferry, and they were well patronized. Very few vehicles were to be seen on the streets, the horses being allowed a good day's rest. Eighteen deaths were reported by the Police. The horses at the car stables continue improving, and it is probable that the cars will run to a later hour to-morrow than during last week.

THE EPIDEMIC ON STATEN ISLAND.

The epidemic still prevails about the north shore of Staten Island, at Port Richmond, New Brighton and Factory Village. Nearly every one is sick, and the grocers and carmen are bringing oxen into service.

Not a Horse Visible on the Streets of Baltimore.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 3.—Today is Sunday indeed. Not a single street-car has been running, and for hours not a vehicle of any kind is on the streets. Every horse-car line in the city except one has suspended running completely, and none will resume before Tuesday, and possibly not before Wednesday. A rain set in on Saturday, which has operated unfavorably on the horses.

Progress of the Distemper in Other Localities.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The majority of the horses here are now suffering from the horse disease, and others have premonitory symptoms. Yesterday it made its appearance in the railroad stables in full force, and in a few hours numbers of horses were relieved from work. Today none of the cars are running, the owners giving all their horses the benefit of rest. Blankets have been purchased in large quantities in order to keep horses warm. Particular attention is paid to the branch of the treatment and to cleanliness, and disinfectants are everywhere freely used in stables. Very few hacks and private carriages were on the streets today, and these from necessity.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Nov. 2.—The horse disease is rapidly increasing in this city. Every livery-stable is affected and closed, and a horse cannot be hired in the place. Some of the cases are very severe, but only one death has occurred. Nearly all private stables are affected, and horses are seldom seen upon the streets. It is rumored that the horse-cars will stop to-morrow. Many kinds of business are greatly incommoded by the prevalence of the disease, but as yet the horses along the Delaware and Hudson Canal do not seem to be much affected. The disease has a very bad effect on the trade of the city, as the country people will not drive in town for fear of their animals catching the epidemic. Reports from the rural villages show that the disease is prevailing there in equally great proportions to the city.

WATERVILLE, Me., Nov. 3.—New cases of horse disease are reported every day. The livery-stables are all closed. Yesterday there were no hacks at the railroad depot. Many cases from the surrounding country are reported.

BRUNSWICK, Me., Nov. 3.—There is little, if any, improvement in the condition of the horses here and vicinity, new cases being constantly reported. No hacks or job-wagons are to be found at the depot. But few farmers come to town now, and trade for the past week has been very dull. Yesterday the driver of the Harpswell stage was unable to procure even a single horse, and was obliged to carry the mail-bags to Brunswick himself.

BOSTON, Nov. 3.—The horse-cars were withdrawn today, as a protection to the horses against the cold rain prevailing. The few hacks needed for hotel guests were the only carriages seen. The disease appears to be slowly but surely passing away.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3.—The horse disease is increasing under the influence of unfavorable weather. An effort was made today to run dummies on the city tracks, but was unsuccessful, the track not being suitable, the engine constantly jumping. Few or no cars were running today. The Omnoline, the most successful here, with its tracks making a circuit over the whole city, announces that no cars will be run Monday. It is thought that by the middle of the week efforts will be as bad here as they were recently in New-York.

The Disease Appears in England—Severe Attacks.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The horse disease has appeared in several places in Devonshire. It is especially severe in Tiverton and vicinity.

Tuesday being a legal holiday, should be wholly devoted by Republicans to their cause.

The Ward's Island Investigation.

Thomas Galvin, an attendant at the Ward's Island Lunatic Asylum, who was examined at the inquest, on Saturday, into the case of Lewis C. Samuels, whose death is alleged to have been caused by ill-treatment at the hands of an attendant named James McDonnell, returned to the Asylum the same night in a state of intoxication and assaulted another attendant named Edward Robeson. Dr. Echeverria had Galvin arrested, yesterday morning, and locked up in the Oak Street Station-house. Twenty-third-street Station is sworn an investigation into the matter. Galvin testified before the Coroner that he never drank.

Made a holiday by law, Tuesday can be made to result in an unprecedented Republican stampede, if every Republican will devote the day, which cannot be employed in business or earning.

MORE HONORABLE GEORGIANS.

Another Near Approach to a Duel—An Honorable Settlement Entitled to the Satisfaction of all Parties.

From the Augusta (Ga.) Constitutionalist, Oct. 31.

Yesterday morning, at an early hour, it became known that Messrs. T. W. Rucker and R. H. Lampkin, two gentlemen from Athens, were in the city for the purpose of crossing over the river into South Carolina to fight a duel. About 10 o'clock one of the parties, Mr. R. H. Lampkin, was arrested and taken before a Justice of the Peace, who required him to give a bond to keep the peace. This bond, as a matter of course, applied only so far as the State of Georgia was concerned, and was not binding outside of her jurisdiction.

During the morning every effort was made by a number of gentlemen to settle the difficulty between Messrs. Rucker and Lampkin, but without avail. Assuming to take place on the Carolina side of the river, near Sand Bar Ferry, at 5 o'clock A. M., was determined upon, and at about 12½ o'clock the principals, accompanied by their seconds—Mr. L. L. McCluskey acting in that capacity for Mr. Rucker, and Mr. M. P. Davis for Mr. Lampkin—two surgeons, and a number of gentlemen of Augusta, left the city in carriages and buggies and proceeded to Sand Bar Ferry, where they crossed over into Carolina. The spot selected as the dueling ground was in a field about half a mile beyond the ferry. Arrived here, another effort was made by friends of both, who wished, if possible, to prevent bloodshed, and settle the difficulty. Prominent among the gentlemen engaged in this laudable purpose were Dr. William E. Dearing, Gen. R. T. Harris and Chief of Police J. A. Christian. All praise is due to them for their generous efforts in the cause of peace. By their intercession the principals were finally induced to refer the affair to a board of honor, composed of Dr. Dearing, Gen. Harris and Mr. James G. Gregg. The decision of this board, however, was not to be considered final, but was to be submitted to the principals through their seconds, for their approval or disapproval. The board retired to a house near the dueling ground, and after some time spent in consultation arranged the basis of a settlement honorable to both parties. This was submitted to the seconds, who, after consultation with their principals, accepted it in their behalf. We failed to obtain the precise terms upon which the affair was settled, but were informed by the board of honor that they were—as we before stated—honorable to both of the parties. Much satisfaction was expressed by all present at this honorable adjustment of the difficulty.

We learn that the difficulty grew out of some remarks made by Mr. Rucker—who is a lawyer—in reference to Mr. Lampkin during the progress of a trial of preliminary investigation in Clarke County.

Von Moltke's Snuff.

The Berlin correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph recounts a pleasant story, illustrative of Prussian administrative thriftiness, which has just gone the round of the French and German papers. According to the narrator—the correspondent of a well-known Belgian journal—Count von Moltke, temporarily resident at Versailles during the Winter of 1870-71, one day ran short of snuff, and failing to find any "sneashin'" of the brand he especially affects in the local bureaux de tabac, instructed one of his subordinates at the War Office in Berlin to forward to him a packet of his "own peculiar" rapped without delay. The snuff was bought, paid for, and sent to Versailles "with military promptitude, and was duly charged to the account of the nation. When, peace having been concluded, the time came for examining the books of all the different departments that had been spending money with horrible prodigality for nearly three-quarters of a year—when "indemnity began to drop in by small installments of £20,000,000 apiece or so, which were at once appropriated to the defrayal of the actual war expenses—one of the officials intrusted with the revision of all the petty cash transactions of the War Office came one day upon the following startling and unclassifiable expense item: "For one pound of extra fine, with-of-Touquin-bean-perfume-highly-impregnated, snuff, by his Excellency the Count von Moltke commanded, three thalers seven and a half silbergroschen." The rigid conscience of the accountant did not allow of his "passing" this unprecedented item; so he made a memorandum of the entry, and referred it up to his immediate official superior, with an explanatory essay, learned, parenthetical and exhaustive, going a good deal into the origins of things, and logically demonstrating that snuff could not be held to be a material or munition of war—ergo, that outlays incurred for its purchase could not be imputed to be saddled upon the national exchequer, or defrayed from the incoming property of the State purchased by the lives of Germany's sons—and so forth. The demurrer thus raised was submitted by one authority to another, enriched with quotations and "opinions," the official manipulation of the question lasting some sixteen months. Eventually the crown lawyers having considered the whole case, and pronounced the snuff-claim to be one that the State could not admit, Von Moltke was officially addressed upon the subject, and requested, with exemplary politeness, to pay for his snuff—a demand with which he at once complied. There is nothing grossly improbable in this story, which has elicited a good deal of unfamiliar moralizing from some of the most light-hearted French newspapers of the day, and has been elevated over with intense enjoyment by great journals of the true Prussian-blue tint. Si non è vero, è ben trovato. No country in Europe is so much and at the same time so cheaply governed as Prussia. Thrift is as meritorious a part of the national character as incredulity itself. The Administration wastes nothing except time; and Government employes are so badly paid, that their time represents a much smaller money value than that of officials in other countries. It is true that there are more of them, perhaps, relatively to the number of the population, than in neighboring States, but they are cheap—very cheap—hard-working, and, as a rule, honest. As in the army administration, par excellence, that the infinitesimal economy of which the above anecdote contains so striking an example is shown off to the greatest advantage. The War Department has succeeded in attaining a maximum of effectiveness and a minimum of expense. It can and does spend money lavishly when an enemy requires amazing; but, when the day of reckoning comes, woe to the official who may have exceeded the exact limits of his instructions, or neglected to account fully for every pfennig of the moneys committed to him for outlay on behalf of the Government! No advances are made, no matter how reasonable. Such an item as "numerous expenses" is not known in any Prussian bureau; no sum is so small that a detail of its expenditure is not required.

Official Vote of South Carolina.

The complete official returns of the vote of South Carolina for Governor at the election held Oct. 16 show that the majority for Gen. Franklin J. Moses, Jr., the regular Republican candidate, over Reuben Tomlinson, candidate of the bolters, is 34,905. There has been a falling off in the total vote, as compared with 1870, of 25,747. Several communications were read from different parts of the country, showing that a reaction was setting in among the sections of the Internationale there. A motion to take practical measures to form a complete reorganization with the disaffected portions of the Internationale in this City elicited a great amount of discussion, but was finally carried.

A long, strong pull, and a pull all together on Tuesday, a legal holiday, will pull Greeleyism up by the roots.

BROOKLYN.

Yesterday a fire occurred in the Kings County Oil-works, on Newtown Creek, caused by the explosion of a still. The establishment belongs to Fleming & Sons. Damage, $100; insured.

Late Saturday night, while Patrick McKenna was in the act of getting on a street-car, in Fulton-street, he was struck by a car coming in an opposite direction, and knocked down, the wheels passing over one of his feet, crushing it in a terrible manner. Taken to the City Hospital.

Political knavery of the vilest sort is at the bottom of Greeleyism; take Tuesday, a legal holiday, for overthrowing it.

LONG ISLAND.

Guards are to be placed around the Government scow in Bell Gate, on pontoons, to prevent further collisions with passing vessels.

The house of Mr. B. P. Westervelt, in Paterson, N. J., was entered on Saturday night by burglars, who stupefied all the inmates with chloroform and then took away $300 worth of silver-ware and a quantity of clothing.

Charles Baum, a German baker, employed by William Titus, and living in Parker-street, Newark, was returning to his home at a late hour on Saturday night, along the "old road." The reservoir in course of erection is exposed, without either fence or light. The excavation is about forty feet deep, and into this Baum fell and broke his back, dying, it is supposed, almost instantly. The friends of deceased are determined to have the matter promptly investigated.

Business men with large interests, who have so dreaded the effects of Greeley's election upon the industry of the country, have the opportunity, in Tuesday being a legal holiday, to prevent that election.

THE AFFLICTED HORSES.

A General Improvement Observed in Their Condition.

Only Four car Lines Running Yesterday—Arrangements for Travel Today—The Disease in Brooklyn and Elsewhere—Its Outbreak in England.

With only four car-lines running, all the hack-horses under cover, and a rainy sky keeping the sidewalks clear of pedestrians during the greater portion of the day, the streets of New-York yesterday wore an air of subdued quiet. However unfavorable the weather might have been to the few horses on the road, it was in one respect a fortunate condition, as preventing the excessive crowding of the cars by pleasure seekers, which was a noticeable feature on the previous Sunday. Fewer cars were run, and less passengers carried yesterday than on any single day during the past few years. The comparatively few who were compelled or constituted a necessity for riding took up all the room in the "occasional" car, but, except on one line, no overcrowding was noticeable during the day. Of the four lines on the road two ran on east-side tracks, one going across town, while west-siders were forced to accommodate themselves with the Eighth-avenue line. Under ordinary circumstances the rush would probably have necessitated a general withdrawal, but fortunately the weather came to the rescue, and kept down the number of travelers to a fair proportion with the means of conveyance.

It was difficult to ascertain the exact number of fatal cases yesterday, but the rate was not as great as in the preceding four days, owing, no doubt, to the inability of drivers to run their horses to death. Strengthened by an entire day's rest, the horses may not die in such number as today as during the latter part of last week, but until sick animals are withdrawn from the shafts, or the last traces of the epidemic disappear, no material reduction in mortality can be looked for.

Railroad officials and many others largely interested in horse-flesh, express fears that the epidemic may develop into glanders or some other fatal disorder. Some of the horses which had been supposed fit for work, exhibit ulcerations and swelling, the latter affection being confined to the legs, though the danger of a general relapse is not yet imminent.

THE STREET RAILROADS.

The Second, Third and Eighth avenues and Bleecker-street lines alone held the road yesterday. On the Second-avenue line twenty cars were hauled off, leaving eighty-seven running. All the "short" cars were withdrawn at 6 P. M., and at 1 o'clock this morning the line ceased running altogether. Should the weather be fine today 107 cars will be run.
